

Getting the short end of the J.T. Berry stick

Half a million to North Reading & $19k to Wilmington from sale of J.T. Berry property

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - The North Reading Transcript reported on June 7, 2007 that North Reading and Wilmington would both receive state funds from the sale of the J.T. Berry property. According to the report, North Reading can expect $530,462 and Wilmington can expect $19,239 in from the property's Phase 1 sale.

The site of the former J.T. Berry Rehabilitation Center, which is located on Route 62 on the North Reading/Wilmington town line, is slated for development in two separate phases. The first phase, which is currently underway, will include the construction of 406 apartments on 48-acres of the 87-acre site. Although the construction will be entirely in North Reading, the parcel includes several acres in Wilmington. Phase II of the project will consist of office space.

In September of 2006, State Representative Bradley Jones (R-North Reading) pushed through a law that would allow the towns of North Reading and Wilmington to receive a total of 20 percent of the net cash proceeds from the sale of the state-owned J.T.

Berry property. As state-owned property, neither town has previously reaped any financial benefit, whether through taxes or otherwise.

Jones told the Eagle Tribune in September 2006 that, "the money will help his town cope with the impact of the development of the

Postmaster retires

DiGregorio calls it a career after 37 years of special deliveries

WILMINGTON - Michael DiGregorio officially retired as the Postmaster from the Wilmington Post Office on June

1st. Until they find a replacement for DiGregorio, Eileen Bagerella will be serving as the OIC (Officer In Charge).

Little did DiGregorio realize that, what started as a part-time job in 1970 when he knocked on the Postmaster's door and asked if he needed summer help, would turn out to be his chosen career.

After completing his summer job, the postmaster needed someone to fill in for people who were on vacation, so DiGregorio stayed on and worked at the Wilmington Post Office all through college. After earning a degree in education, he then worked as a substitute teacher in Wilmington.

Then DiGregorio started working full time at the post office and got involved with the management program, which then led to a customer service and sales position. After working in Wilmington as a window clerk, he was promoted to a district level position in customer service in 1982.

DiGregorio had several different assignments and, in 1986, he was made Manager of Customer Service and Sales in

Mikey cheats death

Jerry Lawrenson saves the life of Mikey Murphy

By STEPHEN BJORK

WILMINGTON - Mikey Murphy wouldn't be here today if not for Jerry Lawrenson.

It was just another Friday afternoon, swimming in the Lawrenson's pool, until the accident that nearly ended Mikey's life.

Jerry poked his head out the back door to talk to his wife just in time to see Mikey fall backwards off of the poolside ladder. Mikey, age 10, went straight down and landed directly on his head in the foot bucket, without making any observable attempt to break his fall. His neck twisted violently and he lay in an unnatural position on the ground.

Jerry ran to him and found that his eyes had rolled back in his head and that he was not breathing.

"Honest to God, I thought he was dead," Jerry said.

That was when Jerry's CPR training kicked in. Though he has not been active for the last couple of years, Jerry has served as a reserve officer for the Wilmington Police Department and has received yearly trainings in lifesaving techniques through the department.

"It's the same course that the Department offers free of charge to the residents," Jerry said.

Assuming that a spinal injury must be present, Jerry made sure to keep Mikey's body as still as possible while administering six or eight "rescue breaths."

Mikey still wasn't breathing.

Jerry gave him one more rescue breath and Mikey's eyes popped open, he let out a scream, and began thrashing. As jarring as the scream may have been, it was music to Jerry's ears.

"Those are great signs," Jerry said. "If he is screaming, he is breathing. If he's thrashing, then he can feel his arms and legs."

Beth Lawrenson had dialed 911 and emergency crews were on their way to the Lawrenson's Dexter Avenue home. According to Jerry, emergency crews arrived on scene within two-and-a-half minutes of the call.

Meanwhile, Cindy Murphy was in her home listening to the sounds of sirens approaching the neighborhood. Call it mother's intuition, but she sensed that they had something to do with her. Regardless, she dismissed the feeling until she heard the frantic pounding on her front door.

"Mikey fell, Mikey fell!" she was told.

She began following the messenger toward the Lawrenson's house until he spoke again.

"He twisted his neck and Jerry is doing CPR."

She can't remember her exact reaction to that information. She thinks that she fell to her knees, she may have passed out momentarily. She believed that her son was dead.

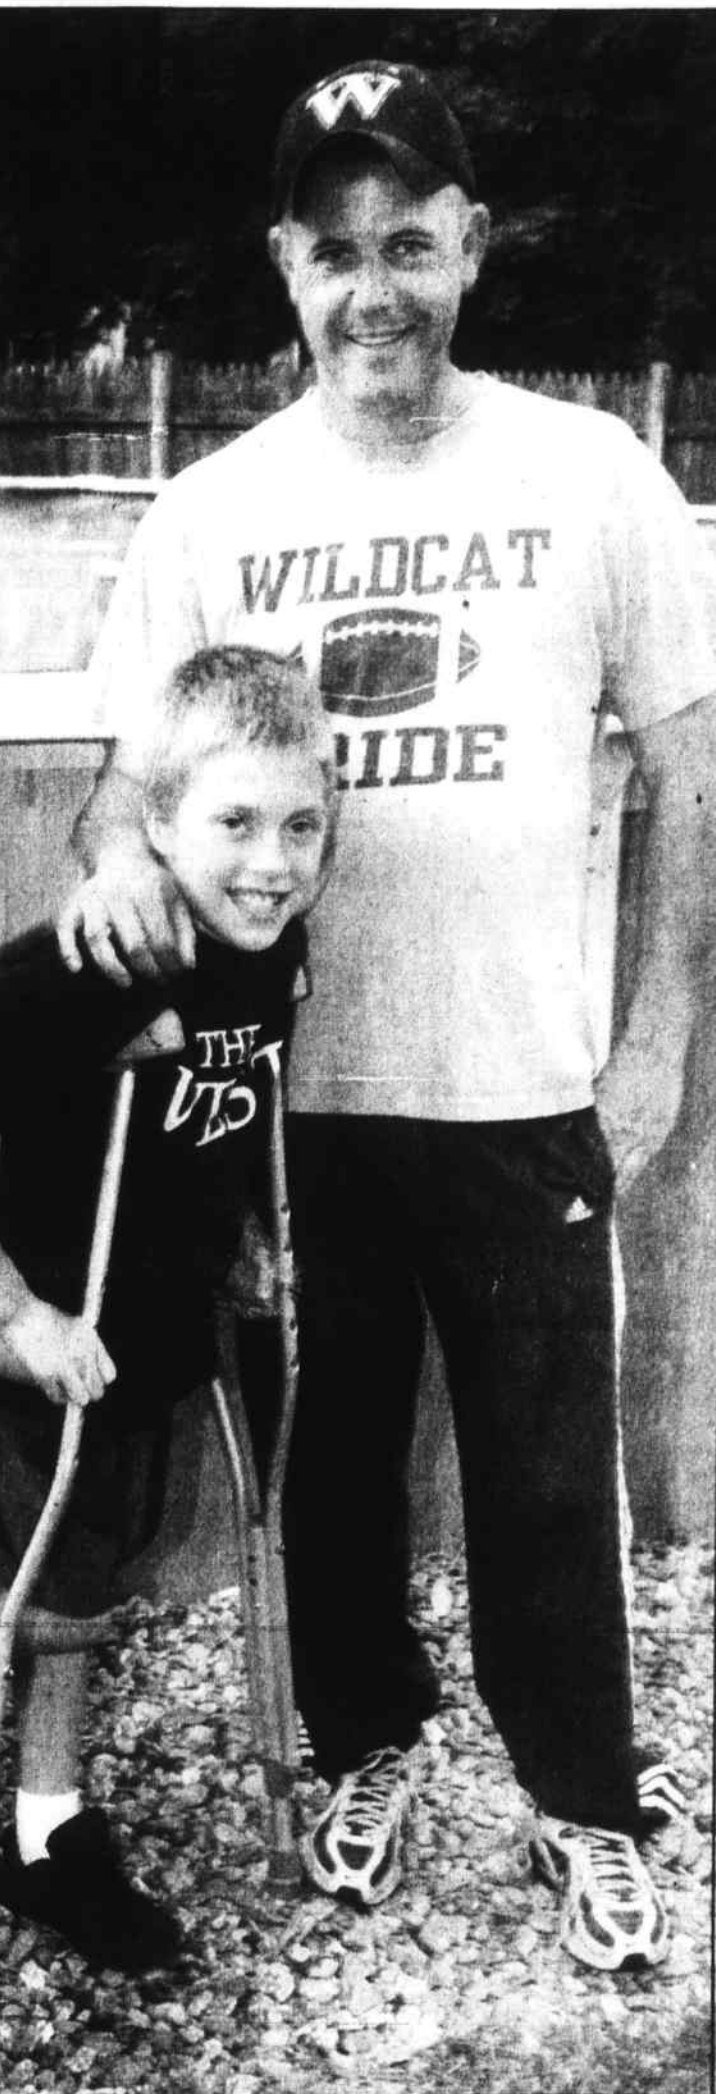

"I've been a mother for 15 years, but there is no way I could prepare for a moment like that," Cindy said.

By the time she crossed the yards and got to the Lawrenson's house, there were EMT's everywhere. She heard them saying repeatedly that if Jerry had not been administering life saving techniques immediately, Mikey would have died - no doubt about it.

Cindy saw her son - he was wearing a full neck brace and lying on what looked like a surfboard. He was asking for her, but since the neck brace was preventing him from turning his head, he couldn't see his mother beside him. Cindy moved up close and leaned her head directly over his in order for her son to see her.

Mikey was rushed by ambulance to Winchester Hospital. They performed an EKG, X-rays of his head and neck, and a CAT scan of his brain. Mikey checked out fine, with the exception of a couple of stitches to his leg, which must have caught on something sharp.

NetNuts spotted in Wilmington

A lifelong friendship was kindled on the Internet 10 years ago

WILMINGTON - As Nelly Smees, from Nova Scotia, Canada and Cilla Anderson, from Wilmington sat around Cilla's kitchen table earlier this week reminiscing over pictures they laughed and said, "Who'd a thunk it!"

You see, Nelly and Cilla, along with their other friend Anne O'Brien from Seattle Washington, met over the Internet, in a chat room for cross stitchers 10 years ago, May 11, 1997, and have been chatting ever since.

Their first meeting in person was nine years ago in Nova

Breakfast at the White House

Missing for 55 years, Ensign Ronald Eaton is not forgotten

By MARCY RAGUCCI

WILMINGTON - There is no expiration date on love, or respect, or grief for a family who has lost someone in a war - even if that war took place more than a half century ago. The family of Wilmington resident, Ensign Ronald Dow Eaton, who served valiantly in the United States Navy during the Korean War, has grieved and remained without closure for fifty-five years.

According to an official Department of the Navy communication, Eaton, who was serving aboard the USS Bon Homme Richard, was reported killed in action on June 25, 1952. The communication revealed that, after take-off from the aircraft carrier and entering North Korean airspace, the engine of his F4U-4 lost oil pressure and he was forced to bail out over enemy territory. Eaton safely parachuted to the ground and his flight-mates called for an Air Force rescue helicopter.

A rescue mission ensued with a helicopter pilot being dispatched to pick-up Ensign Eaton. The helicopter encountered heavy machine-gun fire throughout several rescue attempts, despite the efforts of a fighter escort. On the third attempt, the helicopter managed to pick up Ensign Eaton. However, shortly afterwards the helicopter was struck by enemy ground fire. US escort flyers witnessed three men leave the helicopter and saw the first man parachute to the ground, but saw the second and third men fall to the ground without the aid of parachutes - presumably to their deaths.

According to the surviving crewman who was captured and held as a prisoner of war in North Korea for fifteen months, when they jumped from the helicopter, Ensign Eaton was without a parachute because it had already been deployed in his previous bailout. The survivor tried unsuccessfully to hold onto Eaton during the jump but, when his parachute opened, he lost his grip and Ensign Eaton fell about 800 feet to the ground and was killed by the impact. However, due to the location of his demise in enemy territory, the United States has not been allowed, even to this day, to recover the fallen Eaton.

The United States government continues to actively seek informa-

HealthBridge Management and Hallmark Health held its annual Fair at Maplewood Place in Malden

Healthbridge Management and Lynne Nieman, of Energy Healing Hands Certified Reiki Practitioner held Reiki Demonstration at the annual Hallmark Health Fair. Friday June 8th more than 30 folks waited for their turn for a Reiki demonstration performed by Lynne Nieman. Both Lynne and Teresa Burns, of Healthbridge Management, turned out for the Hallmark Health fair which was held at Maplewood Place in Malden. Mass. Teresa provided educational information from Healthbridge Management which own and operates 15 Sub Acute facilities and Long Term care facilities in Mass.

Although Reiki has been around for centuries most of the folks had not heard of it nor did they know how to pronounce it. But that didn't stop them from forming a line and waiting for their turn. The demonstrations only lasted about 10 minutes each but heard by most, it was the most enjoyable and relaxing 10 minutes they had in a long time. More than 12 people signed up to have Lynne come out to their senior center or housing authority to do an educational presentation on Reiki. If anyone is interested in having a program such as this they are encouraged to contact Teresa Burns of Healthbridge Management to set this up Tburns@lexingtonhcc.com. Many thanks were given to the team for not only bringing out the information on Healthbridge but also the healing hands of Lynne Nieman

It's Your Money

BIG BREAK FOR SMALL BUSINESS OWNERS

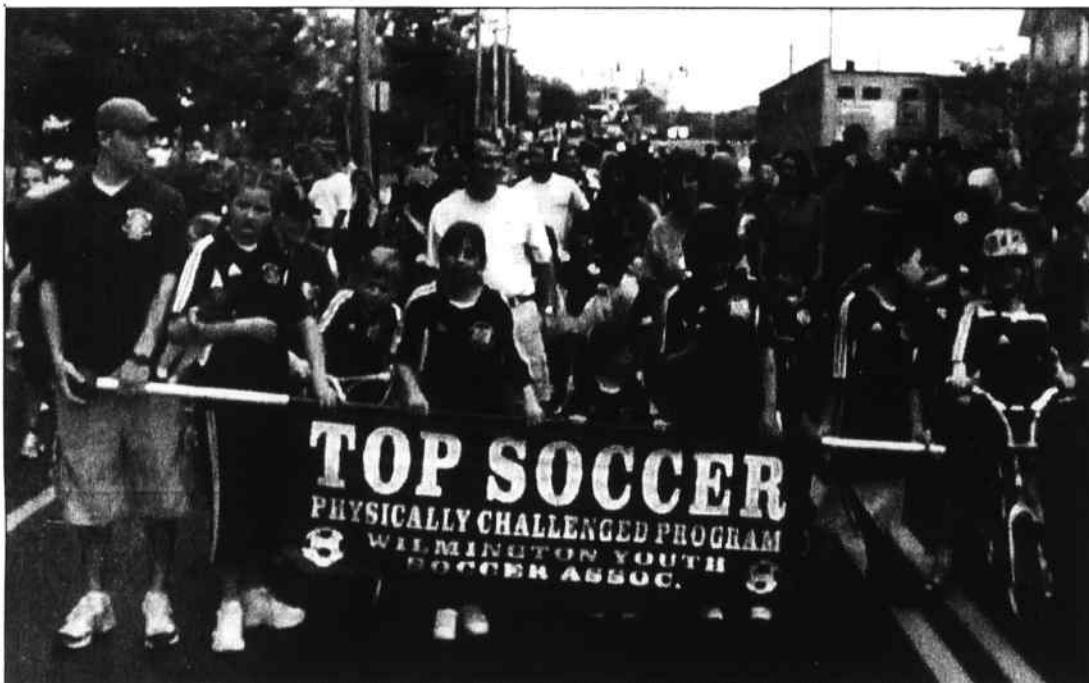

Have you considered a 412(i) retirement plan for your business? Unlike defined-contribution plans such as a 401(k), which severely limit how much an owner can put in and deduct each year, this is a defined-benefit plan, which can absorb whatever contribution is necessary to fund a specified retirement benefit. This year, that benefit can be as much as $180,000. If the owner is nearing retirement, the contribution needs may be quite large.

Key: the 412(i) is funded by investing in an annuity issued by an insurance company. It's safe, but the annual expected return is low. Two provisos must be met: a steady amount must be invested each year, and there are nondiscrimination rules.

Such a plan is best for business with high cash flow to fund the annuity, an owner who is starting his retirement planning relatively late, and younger employees whose benefits won't require large contributions.

Of course, all plans must meet technical rules. Talk to us about them at:

Wilmington Kiwanis Club celebrates 40 years of service

WILMINGTON - The rich history of the Kiwanis Club of Wilmington was celebrated and discussed on Monday at the meeting at Rocco's Restaurant. In 1967 Hayward Bliss organized a group of friends from Wilmington to start a local branch of a club with a funny sounding name, Kiwanis. The club has met nearly every Monday evening since then. The club participates in good works in Wilmington, New England, the United States and internationally. From raising money for local scholarships to supporting Kiwanis International's continuing service emphasis called "Young Children: Priority One," which focuses on the special needs of children from prenatal development to age five the Wilmington Kiwanis Club has been active in the community.

But this evening was for celebrating the individual contributions of the members. Honors included presentations of the Legion of Honor to Leo Gittus (40 years), Stu Neilson, Ken McCowan and Dick Fudge, Sr. (30 years), Bob Martin and Don Rich (25 years); Legion of Merit to Scott McGrath, Bob Tadgell and Bud Gleason (20 years), Karen Boeri (20 years), Rick Fudge, Jim Mahoney, Tom Sulik and Bob Beaulieu (10 years) and Wayne Crawford, Ann Rich and Marcia Olson (5 years).

I-93/I-95 cloverleaf project

Woburn expresses need for sound barriers

By GORDON VINCENT

WOBURN - Stopping short of either endorsing or rejecting the project to reconfigure the Routes I-93/I-95 interchange, Woburn Mayor Thomas McLaughlin last week advised the state Highway Department that sound barriers would be considered critical components of the project.

In a letter to Robert Frey, Manager of Statewide Planning for the state Executive Office of Transportation, McLaughlin also wrote that the city supports the widening of the Washington Street corridor from Mishawum Road to Cedar Street, including the bridge that spans Route 95.

The proposed Cedar Street "slip ramp" off Route 93 is also "an important segment that will serve to significantly lessen the inevitable construction impacts" due to the project, McLaughlin wrote.

While the sound barriers "are critical in providing a quality of life to residents who reside nearest to the highways," McLaughlin said the city is not issuing a "position statement" for the draft report on the project, as the Reading Board of Selectmen did last month.

"The draft did not do justice to the strong position that has been stated by the (I-93/I-95) Task Force that noise is a critical issue and that noise barriers are needed and should be incorporated as much as is feasible as part of the interim improvements," wrote McLaughlin.

Reading officials rejected the two most likely designs, labeled H3-OS and H5-US, which both call for the removal of the northwest and southeast loops at the present interchange, and the creation of the flyover or

"flyunder" ramps.

McLaughlin wrote Woburn's comments in the wake of a draft report issued on May 16 to the task force that has been working with Mass. Highway were "technical," but not an outright rejection of the plan, which would theoretically lessen congestion for the 375,000 drivers who use the intersection each day.

Mass. Highway's effort to widen the interchange started about six years ago, but ran into immediate problems when residential land-takings were proposed in a ham-fisted presentation at the old Woburn High.

A task force involving representatives from Woburn, Reading and Stoneham was formed to advise Mass. Highway, which unveiled the H3-US and H3-OS plans to much fanfare last month.

After a completion of a report by the task force, the project must undergo an approximately 2-year review by the state Department of Environmental Protection.

Meanwhile, traffic on Route 95 south in the morning - exacerbated by an apparently unrelated sound barrier project near Route 1 - is commonly backed up beyond the Route 128 merge.

In his letter, McLaughlin also issued other comments about the draft report. One section "is confusing in telling the history of developing alternatives to separate today and the conclusions arrived at H3-US and H3-US, so more work needs to be done to the document to make it easier to read and understand."

McLaughlin also advised "the report has to make clear that the task force has supported for consideration only the two proposals H3-US and H3-OS."

"Woburn would not support any additional proposals for inclusion in this report that has (sic) not been fully discussed," wrote McLaughlin.

The mayor also noted that Woburn "would also reserve the right to offer a final position" on the final version of the document.

Letters to the editor

Don't take a step back

Dear Editor,
I am concerned when the legislature of a state, or of the United States, wishes to amend the Constitution for a religious reason. In my opinion, an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to prevent a "marriage" from being legal other than a man and a woman is, at least, one tiny step back toward a theocratic form of government.

In the 1600's the Massachusetts Bay Colony was in fact a theocracy. In the 1700's when Massachusetts accepted the Constitution of the United States, one would think that separation of church and state would have been automatic. It wasn't until the 1800's that this happened in the Declaration of Rights.

If you cannot accept the fact that a legal "marriage" might be between other than a man and a woman, then pass a law providing "civil unions" for other family arrangements; as I believe the states of New Jersey, Connecticut, New Hampshire, and Vermont have done, without bowing to the religious doctrine of any particular religion. A man and a woman can still go to a religious institution of their choosing to provide the "sanctity" of their "marriage."

Sorry if you are offended

Dear Editor,
In response to last week's writer in the "your two cents" column I would offer the following:

Have you ever noticed that the flags and banners hung on the fences of highway overpasses are always picture perfect? That is because they are maintained by the citizens who put them up. If they were hung as "ornaments" and forgotten they would be tattered and torn in no time.

As for the abundance of flags put up over Memorial Day weekend on the Rte 62/Burlington Ave. bridge, they are a tribute not only to veterans' past but to those who today "serve and protect" us all.

The shafts are secured so as not to slip down in fencing and the flag portions are above the fence, at rest, so as not to become caught or torn by fence top.

In finality, yes, I do support the troops but I prefer to add "Pray for our military."

I am sorry if you are offended.

Greetings from Baghdad

by SRA Daniel Sullivan

The Town Crier is very pleased to introduce a new column to our readers. SRA Daniel Sullivan, a Wilmington resident, is currently serving in the capacity of Chaplain Assistant in Baghdad, Iraq as a member of the 158th Fighter Wing out of Burlington, VT. In Baghdad, Sullivan is a Force Protection Security Escort and he escorts third country nationals (Pakistanis, Indians, Phillipinos, Bangladeschi, Turkish, etc) and local nationals (Iraqis) onto secure parts of the base to perform jobs critical to the everyday function of society on the base such as laundry, septic, potable water, maintenance, construction and the like. Sullivan's position acts as a first line of defense in counter-terrorism on bases where airmen and soldiers live.

"We afford the folks here the confidence that foreign nationals working here on base do not gather intelligence, or furthermore act out terrorism within their confines," Sullivan explains. "The folks here believe in our mission, and morale is high. I am very proud to serve our great nation in this capacity while in Baghdad."

Sullivan has lived in Wilmington for six years with his wife, Michelle, and there four children.

Today is June 7, 2007 in Baghdad, Iraq. We as security escorts are tasked as the first line in security for our base. We have a job that is sometimes redundant, but nevertheless, terrorism feeds off of redundancy.

We need to remain ever so attentive to what the local nationals are doing while they work here. Due to the economic conditions that the average Iraqi has to endure to supply the needs to support their family, they are susceptible to the temptations that terrorists offer them to do simple intelligence gathering to support an attack to our complex, and ultimately to our military personnel.

The sacrifice that I have chosen to make, just like everyone else here, in support of the war is done with pride and honor. We look past our comforts of home, safety, and the longing of missed loved ones to take part in the history and legacy of our generation.

My job in the Air Force is traditionally a chaplain assistant, which involves reaching out to people of all different walks of life and beliefs. To work as a force protection security escort here in Baghdad, allows me to help others in a way that I would not be able to do while operating within my chaplain assistant role.

After being here almost one month, I long for those days that I coach my sons' t-ball games, or reach out and mentor the youth at my church. But most of all to be the husband and father that sometimes I take for granted. The real heroes, in my opinion, are the families left behind. People like my wife who has the dual role of mother and father at home, as well as encourager and liaison for me while here in theater.

Please reach out to those families that have a loved one deployed to some of these distant, dangerous places and give them a hug, handshake, or just a simple thank you for the sacrifice that they have made to afford their loved ones to do their mission here without guilt or strings attached. All I have to say is, I love you Michelle, and thanks for all you do. You are truly my hero.

Quick Health Tips

by Dr. Leslee Quick

Attention Deficit Disorder

I try to emphasize to my patients that as a holistic doctor I cure nothing. What I do, rather, is keep the spine and nervous system free from interference to better enable the body to heal and maintain a higher level of health.

That is why I often see results far beyond the stereotypical scope of neck and low back pain.

The thought reminds me of a famous Bugs Bunny episode where Christopher Columbus brings his plans of travel to the new world to the King. The King smacks Columbus on the head with a frying pan and said in a deadpan tone "The world is flat...like a pancake."

Well, science is now slowly starting to catch up to what some of us have known for a while. No, the world is not flat like a pancake and, yes, there are conservative ways to treat health disorders.

Case in point. There was a great segment on April 29th on WBZ News discussing the effects chiropractic has on attention deficit/hyperactivity disorder (ADHD). This segment, presented by Dr. Malika Marshall, gave a specific example of a young teenager, named Sophie, with the disorder. Sophie had been taking the typical prescribed medications and was experiencing some common side effects.

The family sought treatment from a chiropractic physician. After a series of treatments, Sophie is now able to focus and no longer requires medication. For more on the segment log on to http://wbztv.com/seenon/local_story_113193009.html.

I have given lectures about the disorder and treated many children with much success. So having this segment really hit home for me. There have been various documented cases about the benefits of chiropractic care for ADD/ADHD but it always adds a little more "oomph" when it hits a mass audience on the screen.

What is Attention Deficit Disorder, a.k.a., ADD? It is a disorder that encompasses three subtypes: combined, predominantly inattentive, or predominantly hyperactive impulsive (ADHD).

In order to correctively diagnose the disorder, the above symptoms must be excessive, long-term and pervasive, appearing before the age of seven and persisting for at least six months. The symptoms must also create a handicap in at least two areas of either school, home or social settings.

Currently, approximately four to six percent of the population has ADD. Unlike what many people may be led to believe, the disorder is not shown to disappear with age. It most likely persists into adulthood.

Though no definitive reason has been given as to the cause of ADD, possibilities that have been addressed include head trauma, birth complications, poor diet, metal toxicity or a genetic predisposition. Whatever the culprit may be, the disorder is very likely caused by biological factors that influence neurotransmitter activity, such as dopamine, within the nervous system. In people with ADD, the neurotransmitters do not function correctly.

In layman terms, neurotransmitters are chemicals that allow nerves to communicate. Most often, various nerves communicate in order to get one single message to their endpoint. Nerves don't attach physically, therefore, neurotransmitters are needed to enable messages to pass from one nerve to the next.

Let's say you're out and you make a cell phone call. You have a message to send - one veggie pizza for delivery. You pick up your cell phone and dial the local pizza shop. Your message is transmitted via waves that connect through cell towers and end up with a person at the other end taking your order. The towers are the transmitters that allow the message to relay to its endpoint. If the message is transmitted correctly, a veggie pizza should be at your door in forty minutes.

Now let's say, there is no cell tower close by. The message gets lost. Without neurotransmitters the messages within the nervous system can not be relayed back and forth.

There are many different neurotransmitters that exist within the nervous system. That, however, is a lesson for another day. Long story short, the idea is that people with ADD don't have the level of chemicals necessary for optimum relay of messages, affecting attention, activity levels, and focus.

The medical model of typical treatment of ADD most often includes prescription drug medications such as Methylphenidate, dextroamphetamine and now lisdexamfetamine dimesylate. Some common brand names of these drugs include Ritalin, Dexedrine, and Adderall. The purpose of these drugs is to boost the neurotransmitter levels in the brain.

These drugs are not used as a cure and only work for as long as they are taken. Again, remember I said that true ADD/ADHD most likely lingers into adulthood. Therefore, in order to maintain the benefits, people with the disorder may need to medicate for a lifetime. During my last research the number of children taking methylphenidate was between one to three million.

Some common side effects of such drugs include insomnia, loss of appetite, weight loss, stomach pain, fast heartbeat, nervousness, dizziness, drowsiness, or increased blood pressure.

Other long-term side effects can include mood changes, growth retardation, hallucinations, confusion and delusions.

So why does chiropractic care help children with the disorder? Our nerves control all functions of our body. Any interference to the nervous system can create imbalances in our relay system of nerve transmission. Remember the cell towers and the veggie pizza? Chiropractic adjustments aid in rebooting the neurological system and allowing the reciprocal flow of information without interference.

As with Sophie, in the segment by Dr. Marshall, a series of sessions are necessary to help the body reboot the system followed by periodic supportive care checkups.

If you know of a child who has ADD/ADHD other proactive measures that can be taken, including removing food dyes, refined sugar, preservatives and additives from the diet. It is sometimes hypothesized that underlying allergies, possibly to dairy or gluten could spark the problem. Try eliminating such items for a while to see if that, too, makes a difference.

Depending upon the child and their diet, I often suggest a good multivitamin, isotonic oligomeric proanthocyanidins (OPC's) and essential fatty acids to be supplemented.

OPCs are super antioxidants that help cleanse the bodily systems by fighting toxic free radicals.

Due to our relative lack of sufficient intake of essential fatty acids, it is important to supplement with these. Omega fatty acids have been vigorously studied and shown to have benefits in such disorders as ADD. Omega-3 fatty acids are found in high levels of some fish or can be supplemented in pill form. Natural food shops and markets do carry chewable forms of the supplement for children who find it difficult to swallow pills.

When the correct dietary changes are made, in conjunction with adherence to a chiropractic plan of treatment, the results can be amazing.

Here's to yours, and your children's health...naturally.

Responding to last week's lone entry:

As an American citizen I am more offended by the foreign flags flown higher than the American flags at a certain gas station on Main St. here in Wilmington. American flags, which, by the way, are usually wrapped around the pole or caught on the roof and gutter, ripped and faded as they are!

Wilmington

Fortnight in Review

by Jayne W. Miller

Amid all the budget bluster and end-of-school chaos this Sunday provides an opportunity to honor our fathers with home made cards (or Hallmark), precious gifts like crafty pencil cups or the ubiquitous necktie, and perhaps a hearty breakfast or round of golf.

This year I want to honor my father, a man of few words except when the talk turns to politics or football (particularly the University of Maine team), a man who took me fishing as a little girl and inspired a love of it in my son. A man who professes not to like dogs but cannot stand if a dog does not like him. A divorced Dad, he never missed a weekend visit.

I think fathers are supposed to be known for their advice. In some artificial social construct once a man has a child he is supposed to wise-up and share his collection of lessons learned with his kids. That's a lot of pressure, and I'm sure some enterprising group of parenting experts/satirists/psychologists has the best methods and wizeden nuggets ready to go at a moments notice. Or not.

My father only ever gave me one piece of advice, or perhaps it's the only one I ever listened to. Over the years I've picked up a few more out of observation rather than being told.

1. On a cream cheese run Sunday morning, avoid speed traps.
2. A good game of cribbage cures many ills.
3. Teach your children to drive in a blizzard; it could save their life.

4. Keep your mouth shut and your eyes and ears open (mostly I have trouble with the first part of this cherry rule).

5. And finally, Do what you love and the money will come.

The first four on that list come from specific instances during my youth. My first (and only) speeding ticket came while trying to roust some cream cheese out of our rural community one Sunday morning to go with the very fine, authentic bagels we had on hand.

In the wilds of Maine, cribbage is a clever way to prevent insanity, pass the time during power outages, and gather with friends. I got so good I beat everyone I played my first year in college (including a few Texas braggarts).

Yes, my father made me drive in blizzards to return movies. And we're not talking a 5 minute trip to the video store. This was semi-rural Maine, people. A video store run took the better part of an hour just to drive there.

The last sentence is that one piece of advice I ever really listened to and its one I share with my own kids. Well, I will when it makes sense. Right now my son seems to think that it means he can choose his own chores. Not so much.

Do what you love and the money will come. For an MBA, that was radical advice from my dad. He saw the value of pursuing one's passion, that living what you love makes life infinitely sweeter. Tilling at a job you hate, even if the money is good, makes for a life of hard time. Choosing a path early on that allows you to do work you enjoy as well as care for your family is even more sanity preserving than cribbage. Hard to believe, I know.

Plus, loving what you do makes it easier to be an expert, to become the best in your field. Though he always wants the best for us and wishes us success, I always felt my dad would rather I was happy whether in a big or small way.

There is only one hard thing about that statement, finding what you love. Some are blessed to know at a young age, such as my husband, that he loves engineering and physics and building stuff with Legos. Others are not so sure what they love. Perhaps the hardest part of all is believing in yourself enough to trust that whatever you choose, you can make it work.

Maybe it's a coincidence that graduations and father's day tend to run pretty close to each other, tripping over each other in the card store racks. Often at graduations dads bestow their best guidance. Along the way, my dad stopped giving unsolicited advice, opting instead to offer up counsel whenever I asked for it, a trait I am grateful for. Nothing sours a relationship quicker than an uninformed parent giving outdated or irrelevant advice does.

So Dad, I will watch out for speed traps, especially on cream cheese runs, try to keep my mouth shut and my eyes and ears open, and keep doing what I love. Thanks, Dad.

Hilton Hotel, East Woburn -

350 attend first H.E.A.T. drug prevention sessions

-Philadelphia model used

By JIM HAGGERTY

WOBURN - Some 350 court personnel and law enforcement officers converged on Hilton Hotel in East Woburn on June 1st for a H.E.A.T. (Heroin Education Awareness Task Force) Conference, including a powerful contingent from the Philadelphia Police Department.

And, throughout the day, the focus was clearly on the Philadelphia PD and individuals like Sgt. Thomas Gleeson, who held area police and court officers spellbound by story-after-story on drug abuse and its consequences.

The focus of the program was prevention, including those to address all types of drug problems from heroin and cocaine to marijuana and to the abuse of prescription drugs.

The event was a first of a kind in this area in an effort driven by Woburn court officers in the presence of Acting Chief Probation Officer Vincent Piro and Probation Officer Michael Higgins. Both have spoken to numerous area police and civic groups on education and prevention.

While it's the HEAT program in Philadelphia, it's H.E.A.T. generating from the Woburn court. Police within the Woburn court's jurisdiction area from Burlington, Reading, North Reading, Stoneham, Winchester, Wilmington and Woburn attended.

"It's all about education," said Sgt. Gleeson at the start of the afternoon session. "There's nothing funny about it. You have to keep your heads up," he said firmly.

In turn, he showed a presentation entitled: "Dead of Summer."

In a no-holds-barred presentation, the blood-spilled lives of victims of deadly drugs was in evidence for over two hours in his presentation, including first-hand accounts by three parents who lost children tragically to drugs. All said they felt helpless, as they tried to curb its use.

"It's all about choices," barked Gleeson at another juncture. "Senseless drug deaths and drug deals gone wrong. There are all kinds of excuses."

Added to the fact, he said, drugs today are "much, much more powerful than when we were kids."

In addition, others are killed or hurt, he said, as he showed how an engineer on a railroad in Canada on marijuana killed four Canadian Mounties.

Items like alcohol didn't escape his wrath either. "There's also medication just hanging around houses and the kids sell it and that makes them drug dealers," he warned at another juncture, stressing education as being very important in all areas.

In some of his presentations to kids and others, he passes around a black plastic body bag. It is effective and raises the consciousness of everyone "and you would be surprised how many people refuse to handle it!"

"I ask the groups: what will your obituary read?" he intoned at another point. The mindless, senseless deaths, he said, can be avoided with education.

District Attorney Gerry Leone Among those speaking was Middlesex District Attorney Gerry Leone.

Special Agent Todd Prough of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration and Mass. State Trooper Steve Mullaney, a state police drug recognition expert, were also speakers at the daylong conference.

In recent months, a bonding has occurred between the Woburn District Court personnel and the Philadelphia PD, including a visit by Woburn personnel in April to experience first hand their program in Philadelphia.

A host of subjects were covered in the intense daylong effort, including drug recognition, profiling of an overdose, a probation department's approach to addiction and treatment.

The main thrust of the meeting and sessions was to use Philadelphia as a model of attacking drug problems from a preventative standpoint.

Veteran police and court officers have come to realize in this area in the past year the importance of presenting a "no-holds barred outlook on the true damage and destruction that drugs are causing young and old alike."

Technically, the session was billed as "The First Annual Conference on Heroin Problems Facing our Communities Today." The conference also reached out to groups outside of law enforcement, such as school administrators, nurses, counselors and teachers.

DA Leone highlighted the importance of prevention and intervention strategies as well as techniques that can be used by parents, teachers, police, court officers and others in spotting signs of abuse and offer assistance.

In his keynote remarks, Leone noted:

"The problems of addiction confront so many of our young people - impacting not only themselves but the families and our communities."

"That is why it is critical for all of us to come together to coordinate on prevention and intervention strategies while also focusing on rehabilitation and treatment efforts on comprehensively addressing this pressing issue."

Leone, who has been a professional prosecutor, cites his own record of combating drugs through prosecution, intervention and rehabilitation strategies.

In fact, Leone began his career in the Roxbury District Court in the early 1990s during the height of the crack cocaine epidemic where, as a young prosecutor, he prosecuted many drug-related offenses.

He also noted that he moved on to the Middlesex DA's office and the U.S. Attorney's office in a similar role.

Community-based programs, he noted, are very important and creating awareness like the Woburn conference is essential.

Leone pointed to his own efforts in implementing and running the Middlesex Community Based Justice (CBJ) Program that became a national model for preventing kids from ending up in the justice system.

This program is still in effect, especially in schools in the county, and allows Assistant District Attorneys "to become ingrained in those communities - gaining an intimate knowledge of the neighborhoods, maintaining continuity in cases and providing a consistent voice and contact with the DA's office."

The large forum also gave providers a chance to show their rehabilitation programs, such as the Reckitt Benckiser Healthcare program (suboxone.com) and CAP Health & Recovery Services (www.cap-health.org)

Shawshen Tech students will be making the trip to Kansas on June 22 to participate in the prestigious SkillsUSA national finals.

Tewksbury residents Matt Cote, Eric Tavares, Eric Shaw, Josh Richard and Stephanie Gath along with Lacey Leonard of Billerica will all represent Shawshen Tech.

"I can't wait to go," said Shaw, who won a state championship for plumbing.

Shaw earned the trip to nationals by doing a bathroom remodel during the state-level competition. Competitors had four hours to complete their task and judges then tested all aspects of the students' jobs.

"At the beginning, I was staring at all of the fittings thinking 'Where am I going to start?'" admitted Shaw.

But Shaw drew on four years of experience at Shawshen Tech and with the additional experience he has gained with Lowell-based David Murphy Plumbing and Heating through the cooperative education program.

"Working in the field helped a lot," said Shaw, who actually attended Shawshen Tech with hopes of being a carpenter before changing his choice at the end of his freshman year.

Leonard, a culinary student, is traveling to nationals as the school's state officer, replacing Cote, who will attend nationals as a voting delegate.

Leonard is one of eight state officers attending nationals.

"I hope to represent Massachusetts as well as I can," said the junior. "I hope I can provide good leadership."

After taking a written test and interviewing with five different people at the SkillsUSA districts, Leonard advanced to the state finals. She admits that the district event was an interesting experience.

"We were interviewed on camera about what we would bring to SkillsUSA," Leonard said. "It was very nerve-wracking, but you have to have the confidence that you are going to do well."

At states, Leonard was one of 16 students competing for the eight spots at nationals. She had a month to prepare a speech and think of a campaign slogan to present in front of more than 300 delegates, a group that included Cote.

After the speeches, candidates sat through question-and-answer sessions from the outgoing state officers and from the delegates.

"It was fun," Leonard said. "Meeting 15 other people was absolutely amazing. We all clicked, it was very good for everyone. It teaches you confidence. It's normal to be nervous, but you have to push it aside."

Leonard was a voting delegate at last year's SkillsUSA competition and admits Shawshen Tech instructor Meg Costello urged her to try for a spot as a state officer this year.

"She really pushed me," Leonard said. "And I thought Matt [Cote] was a very good state officer and I thought it was neat."

"She is perfect for the role," said Nanci McKenzie, a SkillsUSA advisor and health teacher at Shawshen Tech.

Leonard said her time at Shawshen Tech helped her immensely.

"I learned so much in my English class with Mrs. Marquis," Leonard added. "All of the teachers push you, encourage you and support you."

Stephanie Gath's contribution to SkillsUSA this year is an artistic one as Gath designed the state pin that will be on display at nationals.

"Each state that goes to nationals has a pin," McKenzie said, adding that students at nationals exchange pins with one another.

Tavares earned his spot at nationals through his success in carpentry.

After finishing third in a written exam at the district level, Tavares won the state competition by building a small model of a house. Tavares had seven hours to build the 4x4 home that was complete with dry-wall, vinyl siding and windows.

"I knew all of that stuff anyway," Tavares said with a smile.

Tavares was prepared thanks to his work at Shawshen Tech and his co-op job at Black Dog Construction in Salem, N.H.

"Some kids had no clue," said Tavares, who hopes to study construction management in college next year. "We do those kind of things all the time."

Richard will attend nationals in the difficult category of prepared speech.

At states, Richard's seven-minute presentation on "Champions at Work" featured different examples of the five qualities of a champion including perseverance, self-belief, teamwork, determination and the ability to motivate others. Richard spoke about Martin Luther King and the U.S. soldiers in Iraq as examples of champions.

A culinary student, Richard hopes to study economics at the University of Massachusetts at Dartmouth in the fall. He credits Mrs. Marquis with helping him prepare for his speech at states.

"I was really surprised when I won," he said.

Richard will deliver the same speech at nationals without the benefit of any note cards.

Life Line screening in Reading

BOSTON - Residents living in and around the Reading, Mass., community can be screened to reduce their risk of having a stroke. Life Line Screening will be at the First Congregational Church on June 29th. The site is located at 25 Woburn St in Reading. Appointments will begin at 9:00 a.m.

A stroke, also known as a "brain attack", is ranked as the third leading killer in the world, and the second among women. Through preventive screenings, the risk of having a stroke can be greatly reduced.

Screenings are fast, painless and low cost. They involve the use of ultrasound technology, and scan for potential health problems related to: blocked arteries which can lead to a stroke, aortic aneurysms which can lead to a ruptured aorta, and hardening of the arteries in the legs, which are a strong predictor of heart disease. Also offered for men and women, is a bone density screening to assess their risk for osteoporosis.

All four screenings take less than an hour to complete. A complete wellness package, including the Stroke/Carotid Artery, Abdominal Aortic Aneurysm, Ankle Brachial Index (hardening of the arteries) and Osteoporosis screenings, is only $129 (a savings of $41!).

Life Line Screening was established in 1993, and has since become the nation's leading provider of vascular screenings. Over 85 ultrasound teams are on staff to travel to your local community, bringing the screenings to you. These non-invasive, inexpensive and painless, ultrasound tests help people identify their risk for stroke, vascular diseases or osteoporosis early enough for their physician to begin preventive procedures.

For more information regarding the screenings or to schedule an appointment, call 1-877-2371287. Pre-registration is required.

Burbank YMCA Summer Camps

READING - The school year is quickly coming to a close and summer camp season is right around the corner. Join the Burbank YMCA for a summer full of fun with one of the many summer camps the Y has to offer. Summer camps start on June 25th and registration is open so reserve your spot today!

The Y currently offers camps for children from preschool to high school. If your child wants to learn leadership skills, likes the outdoors, or simply enjoys arts and crafts we have the camp for you.

NEW this year is Camp Conquistadors (grades 6-9) and Future Leaders Camp (grade 5). Conquistador's campers will embark on a new field trip everyday to places like Fenway Park and Water Country. Service learning and team building will also be a part of this camp.

Future Leaders Camp will introduce your child to the world of leadership in a camp setting. The mornings will consist of camp activities and the afternoons will be spent providing leadership to the younger campers.

Camp Imagination is a full or half day camp for preschoolers ages 3 to 5. Camp Wakanda (grades 1-6) is the Y's most popular outdoor camp. Children will participate in water front activities, ropes courses, archery, and more! At Camp Quannapowitt (grades K-6) children will embark on many different local field trips each week to participate in activities like fishing and bowling.

Camp Wilbur for children in K thru 4 offers a wide range of activities related to science, nature, sports and more. Weekly guests at Camp Wilbur will also provide exciting presentations to campers.

If a full day of camp is just too much the Y also offers Sports Clinics (ages 9-12) and Enrichment Camps (grades K-5) that run for a few hours a week. Children can choose from gymnastics, lacrosse, cooking, drama, science and more!

Space is limited so sign up today! The Burbank Family YMCA wants everyone to be happy and active this summer. For more information contact Andrea Consolante at 781-944-9622 ext 236 or visit www.YMCABoston.org click "Find A Y" and choose Reading/Burbank.

National program aimed at reducing health care fraud takes on a new identity

Massachusetts - In an effort to enhance its national identity and foster greater awareness, the national Senior Medicare Patrol Program has officially adopted a new program identity. The Senior Medicare Patrol Program is now officially referred to as the SMP Program. Included in this effort is the new program logo and official tagline: "Empowering Seniors to Prevent Healthcare Fraud."

The SMP program, funded by the US Administration on Aging (AoA), is a national network of 58,000 trained volunteers and counselors in community-based projects to help older Americans avoid unintended errors and detect deliberate abuses in Medicare. The SMP program volunteers and counselors are located in every state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

"The adoption of a new national identity is a promising new direction for the SMP program which will help to unify best efforts in preventing healthcare fraud," said Barbara Dicker, director of AoA's Office of Consumer Choice and Protection. "Our new program tagline Empowering Seniors to Prevent Healthcare Fraud better captures the current mission, role and activities of our program."

Local SMP programs across the country utilize the skills and expertise of retired individuals and community leaders, such as doctors, nurses, lawyers and everyday citizens to educate seniors about how to take an active role in the detection, prevention and reporting of health care errors, fraud and abuse. Improper Medicare payments alone were estimated to cost the taxpayer approximately $10.8 billion in FY 2006.

In 2005, the US Department of Health and Human Services' inspector general reported the following SMP program accomplishments:

- * SMP volunteers and staff reached 483,432 people through presentations and one-on-one counseling sessions, and another 1.2 million through 10,664 community education events.

- * As a result of educating beneficiaries, the projects have received 27,900 complaints of potential error, fraud or abuse, which have been referred to CMS contractors, the OIG and other appropriate entities for further investigation.

"The Senior Medicare Patrol (SMP) Program is instrumental in reaching and counseling limited English speaking populations across the state with time-sensitive health benefits eligibility information," said SMP Program Manager Lucilia Prates. "The program raises awareness and educates seniors on the importance of becoming educated health care consumers and empowers them to identify health care errors, abuses and prevent potential fraud."

If you'd like more information about the SMP program, visit www.smpresource.org. For the Massachusetts SMP program, contact Lucilia Prates at Elder Services of the Merrimack Valley in Lawrence, MA at 800-892-0890 ext. 326.

Several years ago after much consideration and three decades of service to the Council on Aging, Mr. Hupper resigned from the Council due to ill health. As Director of the Council on Aging I remember Mr. Hupper most for his ability to listen, his impartial and conservative wisdom and his wit. As a long time resident of Tewksbury, I will always remember Mr. Hupper as the icon of Tew Mac Airport. He will be missed by many good friends.

Wilmington Library Notes

by Christina Stewart

Library summer hours

The library will be closed on Saturdays beginning Saturday, June 23rd and will re-open beginning Saturday, September 8th. The week day schedule for the library remains the same. Library hours are Monday through Thursday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Friday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Book Store Next Door Open Saturdays in the Summer

If you need a book for beach reading, stop by the Book Store Next Door to fill your beach bag with sizzling reads. The Book Store Next Door will be open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturdays throughout the summer. Keep an eye open for any additional openings.

Summer Reading Programs Sign-up

Don't forget to make time to visit the library to register for the Children's and Teen Summer Reading Programs (Crazy About Science and Crazy to a Science). Adults are also invited to participate in the Adult Department Summer Reading Program. It is very easy - all that is necessary is to fill in a drawing entry for each book read or audiobook listened to. Following along with this year's theme of science and technology, the prize is an MP3 player. The drawing will be held on August 28.

Crazy about Science

Looking for an antidote to summer's doldrums? This year's summer reading program, Crazy about Science, holds the solution. Expand your universe by attending out of this world science programs featuring The Magic of Science, Having Fun with Fossils & Dinosaurs, Mad Science of Greater Boston Workshops and Wolf Talk. Crazy about Science begins June 14th. Free lab notebooks for all ages await the sparks of imagination. Leave space in your busy schedule for scientific discovery at the library!

For more information visit the library or website at www.wilmlibrary.org or call (978) 694-2098.

Big Wheels

Fire engines, construction vehicles, police cars, oh my! Are you fascinated by these working vehicles and others with big wheels? If so, visit them at the Wildwood Street parking lot behind the library on Friday, June 22nd from 10 a.m. - 12 p.m. All ages are invited to meet the town operators of these vehicles, ask questions, climb inside and imagine what it must be like to drive them! Due to the space needed to park these big machines, the public is requested to park at the Swain School parking lot on Middlesex Ave.

Thanks to the Town of Wilmington's Department of Public Works, Fire Department and Police Department for making this program possible.

Sidewalk Chalk

All ages are invited to meet in the lower parking lot behind the library on Friday, June 15th from 10 to 11 a.m. to create chalk drawings on the pavement. Free refreshments will be available, courtesy of the Friends of the Library.

Children's Movie Night

The newest film based on the award-winning book, Bridge to Terabithia by Katherine Paterson, will be screened on Tuesday, June 19th at 6:30 p.m. In this story of friendship, kindred spirits (played by Josh Hutcherson and AnnaSophia Robb), share a land of make-believe, until tragedy occurs.

Drop-in with something comfortable to sit on, if desired. Free popcorn and lemonade will be served. Rated: PG.

The Magic of Science

Marvin Novogrodski, popularly known as Marvelous Marvin, brings his show, The Magic of Science, to the library on Monday, June 18th at 7 p.m. to an audience aged 5 & older.

The Magic of Science explains (in humorously delivered rhymes) the scientific process, from the art of experimenting to the creation of an invention. Behold the twirling perpetuos! Thrill to the billiard-ball spinning sculptures! Marvel at the eight-foot tall photo collage! With simple experiments that kids can try at home, they learn about air pressure, carbon dioxide and the invention of the wheel.

A professional performer since 1984, Marvelous Marvin incorporates dance, theater, magic and circus arts with his love of research and science.

To reserve your free tickets to this event, please visit or call the Children's Room at (978) 694-2098. Sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

Bored? Games! (for teens)

Looking for something FREE to do with your friends once school's out? Come play games! Drop in from 6:30-8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 20—we'll have board games from Scattergories to Scrabble and card games from Magic to Munchkin (and snacks and drinks, too), so grab some friends and play with us!

Down to a Science: Home Brewing

Learn how sodas become fizzy, and make your own ginger ale or root beer to take home! (Please bring a clean 2-liter soda bottle with a cap.) Workshop will be held Thursday, June 21, from 3-4 p.m.

Harry Potter Discussion and Support Group

Mark your calendar - Wednesday, June 27 - drop-in at the library, 7-8:30, to discuss your predictions for the latest in the series and opinions of earlier books. All ages are invited to join in lively discussion. The library has copies of the earlier books in the series.

Volunteer Needed

For the past few years we have been fortunate to have a talented young man from St. John's Prep, Danvers, as a volunteer teacher of Computer Basics on Thursday evenings. Carl Crupi has graduated from high school and will be attending college in the fall. We wish him best of luck. In order to be able to offer free computer classes for all ages and abilities the library is looking for someone who enjoys instructing one-on-one in the area of Computer Basics. If you are interested and have the time, please call Linda Callahan at the library, (978)694-2099.

www.wilmlibrary.org

Keep the library's web site bookmarked on your computer to keep up to date on all library programs and events. Access the library's online catalog and research databases 24/7 from your home computer. You can also make requests in the comfort of your own home and visit the library to pick them up when they become available.

Tewksbury Library Notes

by Jen Hinderer

What can your library do for you?

What do you want from your public library?

In the next few weeks you'll have a chance to answer a survey and tell us just what you want from your public library. As part of a new long range planning process the Tewksbury Public Library is asking for input on our services and materials through a brief, 11-question survey. Beginning on Friday, June 15th copies of the survey will be available at the library and at our website: www.tewksburypl.org. You will also find copies at town hall and at town meeting on Thursday, June 28th.

Included in the survey are questions pertaining to our present programs and services, our customer service, and an opportunity to tell us about new or different services you'd like us to offer. There is even a chance to tell us about things we are already doing that maybe we could do a better job at. The survey should only take you a few minutes to complete, and you can return it to the library any time before July 15th. We'll take the results of this survey and combine it with the input of our Long Range Planning committee to form a new set of goals for the next 5 years.

We want to hear from everyone, whether you are a regular library user or not! If you aren't a library user we'd like to know why, and if there is a service that might entice you to use the library. Many people who aren't library users have had a negative experience here in the past: we'd like to hear about that, too. If you are a regular user but would like to see changes or improvements, this survey is your chance to let us know. Every idea is important, so please take the time to respond and help us make your library more relevant, more welcoming and more fun.

What's new at the library?

Digital videos you can download and watch at home! If you haven't already tried our new "MyLibrary DV" service, make time to try it this week. Dozens of new videos have been added to fitness, home improvement, travel and literature. All you need to use this service is a personal computer and a valid library card. Click on the MyLibrary DV link on our homepage and follow the instructions to start watching. Don't have a computer at home but still want to try it? Come in and use a library computer!

This service is free with your library card and is just one of the many services you can use online. Visit our website at www.tewksburypl.org to learn more about: downloading audio books, accessing our databases or searching our computer and reserving books from home.

Wilmington Recreation Dept. fishing derby winners

The Wilmington Recreation Department held its Annual Fishing Derby at Silver Lake on Saturday, June 2, 2007. Wilmington youth and non-professional adults were invited to test their luck and show off their fishing skills.

Experienced and novice anglers alike had a great time at this shore-fishing event.

To add some excitement, participants competed with each other for prizes in three categories. Dylan Needham and Dan Kakleas were winners in the Bass category catching bass weighing in at fourteen ounces and ten ounces respectively. Dan Hope won the Non-Bass category catching a one-pound Horn Pout. Nick Noel bested the competition and won the casting contest.

The Recreation Department would like to thank Jim Buckley for his assistance planning and supervising the Derby. Thanks to Bill Ross, Eleanor Buckley and Tom Coughlin for their support throughout the event. Thanks to Wilmington Pet Supply for their generous bait donation. And finally, thanks to Al Knod and his fellow members of the Massachusetts Anglers Association for their help and expertise.

An event of this magnitude would not be possible without the considerable help of volunteers and we offer all our sincere thanks.

Shawsheen receives literary awards

BILLERICA - One of the best-kept secrets at Shawsheen Valley Technical High School isn't so secret anymore.

Recently, Shawsheen Tech's literary magazine, Ramblings, and the school's newspaper, Ram Page, were both honored at the 37th annual Scholastic Press Forum Awards hosted by American International College in Springfield.

Ramblings was named Best Literary Magazine and was also recognized for Best Literary Magazine Design while the Ram Page was awarded Best Small Newspaper. Judges chose the Shawsheen Tech publications from more than 2,000 entries.

"We have so many talented people in our program," said senior Vicky Sarkissian of Billerica, a contributor to the magazine for the past three years. "The magazine is a great way to promote what we do here."

Instructors Doug Michaud and Leah Marquis work with students for both publications. Marquis is an English teacher and helps students with much of the writing while Michaud, a Visual Design and Communications instructor, has worked on the design and layout of the publications with his students.

The Shawsheen Tech newspaper includes features on new and retiring teachers, stories on happenings throughout the school, updates on the Ram athletic teams and other pieces like movie and restaurant reviews.

"To get an award out of two thousand entries is pretty good," said Marquis, a teacher at Shawsheen Tech for 31 years.

Two editions of Ramblings were submitted for the contest. The magazine is comprised of short stories and poems by Shawsheen Tech students.

"Anybody can contribute," said senior Jessica Silva of Wilmington. "Students in diesel or any other vocational technical program can contribute anything creative."

Just about every story is accompanied by photos and other art work.

"Nothing enhances a poem or a story like a graphic or a photo," said Jessica Waldrup, a senior from Tewksbury that is headed for the New England

Institute of Art in the fall.

The covers of the two magazines were designed by seniors Shauna Leavitt and Kate Bradley, both of Tewksbury.

"They were exceptional," said Michaud of the covers. "I think the students were pretty surprised by the awards."

"The graphics designers were really the unsung heroes in all this," Marquis said.

Silva was the model for one of the covers and was one of the students that was both surprised and excited by the news of Shawsheen Tech's latest awards.

"I guess we have some really creative students," said Silva, one of seven students in the senior class that will be attending the Mass. College of Art in

Marquis said the awards have already sparked interest in future publications and, hopefully, future honors for the school.

"I see a lot more awareness," said Marquis. "Mr. Michaud is putting copies of the awards up in the rooms and students that I don't even know are coming up to me and asking me about the publications. I think this is going to become something that is identified with Shawsheen Tech."

"I was walking down the hall the other day and another student stopped me and said 'I saw your drawing in the magazine,'" Sarkissian said. "It's a really good way to get noticed."

Gagnon's journey ends at the top

BILLERICA - As she entered the eighth grade, Monique Gagnon still wasn't entirely sure where her high school career would lead her.

Yes, she had two older brothers that attended Shawsheen Valley Technical High School in Billerica, but Gagnon, a Tewksbury resident, was thinking about going to Tewksbury High with the end of her friends.

In the end, Gagnon did choose Shawsheen Tech and four years later, she's reaping plenty of benefits from that decision.

Recently, Gagnon was one of 47 vocational technical high school students throughout Massachusetts honored at the 21st annual Outstanding Vocational Technical Student Awards Banquet at Worcester's Mechanics Hall.

"Monique takes a full honors-level academic course load and is ranked number one in the senior class," said Superintendent/Director Charles Lyons. "Monique extends beyond her academic and technical studies by serving as a member of the National Honor Society and a volunteer with the student outreach program at Shawsheen Tech."

Christopher Anderson, Chairman of the State Board of Education and President of the Mass. High Tech Council, was the featured speaker at the event and complimented the winning students on their school's great progress in education and their "efforts and contribution toward meeting the global challenges we all face."

"I just wanted to be able to learn something new and different," said Gagnon of her decision to attend Shawsheen Tech. "My brothers really liked Shawsheen Tech and I thought it would be a good experience."

Gagnon's first choice as a freshman was culinary arts, but she would later change to the school's machine technology program where she fell in love with making things and viewing the finished product.

"She's terrific," said Joe Mullen, who taught Gagnon during her sophomore and junior year. "She is one of the top students that I have had in 27 years of teaching machine technology."

"She's a fabulous young lady," added Joe Barrett, Gagnon's machine technology teacher this year. "I'd love to have a whole classroom of students like her. She grasps most concepts right away and if she doesn't, you only have to show her once. Her willingness to help other students really impresses me."

Gagnon's high school career has been filled with highlights.

As a junior, she was named the Most Valuable Player of the swim team at the school and also won a gold medal at the SkillsUSA district competition and advancing to the state finals. This year, she once again was a standout for the swimmers and led the Rams to the state's vocational championship and also repeated her success at SkillsUSA, earning a silver medal at districts.

Gagnon has also stayed active in Shawsheen Tech's cooperative education program as she has been employed at Saber Machine and Design this year.

"I work there every other week," Gagnon said. "It's a nice break from school and it really gives you a real-world experience. Co-op is a great experience because you get to learn different things at a much quicker pace than the machine technology shop."

Her academic and technical achievements have earned Gagnon the John and Abigail Adams Scholarship Award and the Wellesley College Book Award.

Gagnon's future includes college. She plans to attend a four-year school and study aeronautical science.

"She will be successful in whatever she chooses to pursue," Mullen said, "I'm sure of that."

Shawsheen Tech answers 'Design Challenge'

Students design, build, prototype and successfully test robotic inspection device

BILLERICA - Participating in a first-of-its-kind "Design Challenge," Shawsheen Valley Technical High School students successfully solved an electromechanical engineering problem created by the Wentworth Institute of Technology as part of the Museum of Science PowerUP! project.

Students from three vocational-technical programs (Machine Technology, Electronics and Computer Aided Design and Drafting) worked collaboratively to design, build, prototype and test a portable robotic system capable of inspecting and maneuvering within a four-inch piping system. The project's goal was to offer high school juniors and seniors a "real world" engineering problem to solve similar to the projects college students at Wentworth undertake.

"This was a great experience for the students," said Shawsheen Tech Machine Technology instructor Joe Mullen, who noted that only Shawsheen and Hyde Park High School were invited to participate. "Students worked together with students from other shops as they would in both industry and engineering programs. This collaboration is truly what happens in the field and something that you can't teach without this type of project and environment."

Not only did students design a remote-control vehicle equipped with a camera, they fabricated and machined the parts they needed in addition to building the electronic control box - all of which in under four months and with a budget of $500.

"The project really made you think on your feet," said Derek Guckert, a Drafting junior from Billerica. "You would go back and forth between the shops during the design and manufacturing stages and have to find solutions to obstacles as the project developed."

Even the engineering students from Wentworth came away impressed when the Shawsheen students pitched their project on the nationally ranked school's Boston campus.

Christine Shaw, Shawsheen Tech's Director of Guidance, recalled that during the presentation, "one of the Wentworth students told the Shawsheen team, 'we couldn't have gotten this far into the project in the amount of time your team had.'"

"Everybody was extremely impressed what the students were able to accomplish in a very short period of time," said

Professor Frederick F. Driscoll, Chair of the Wentworth Electromechanical Engineering Program. "I believe the teachers and students really enjoyed the project because it brought together students studying in four different majors - CAD drafting, electronics, manufacturing and sheet metal. We are now looking forward to doing a project next year and want it to be a whole year project."

Bob Guelli of Shawsheen Tech's Computer Aided Design and Drafting program, also a Wentworth graduate, oversaw the project.

"When representatives from Wentworth conducted a site visit, they were overwhelmed by the size of our shops and how well equipped Shawsheen is," said Guelli, who added that the dozen Shawsheen students involved also all participate in Tech Prep - a statewide network of schools, businesses and employment training providers that collaboratively develop and implement an integrated curriculum of academics, technical studies and workplace experiences.

RMLD customers are eligible to receive one rebate for each qualifying Energy Star appliance. Appliances must be installed at the location of the customer on the account and RMLD reserves the right to inspect the installation on the premises. This offer is subject to availability of funds.

Receipts for purchases of eligible appliances retroactive to July 1, 2006, will be honored. For more information on RMLD's Energy Star Gift Certificate Rebate Program, call Customer Service at 781-944-1340.

acre site into housing, offices and commercial space." North Reading is getting the lion's share of the money, having the vast majority of the site located within its boundaries, but Wilmington officials have long argued that most, if not all, of the impact from the development will be borne by

Wilmington. The project is expected to generate more than 2,500 car trips a day, and Wilmington projects that roughly 70 percent of those motorists will be using Wilmington roads to access Interstate 93 and elsewhere. Additionally, the developer of the property expects a significant portion of its tenants to utilize the North Wilmington

MBTA stop.

Because all of the units will be situated on North Reading land, Wilmington will not see any revenue from property taxes. Pleas from Wilmington to the state for funds to go toward road improvements and other mitigation measures have gone unanswered.

When asked for comment, Wilmington Town Manager

Michael Caira had not yet been made aware that the town was in line to receive state funds from the sale of the property.

"We're not insulted by $19,000, but we're not appeased by it either," Caira said, when informed of the situation by the Crier. "Wilmington will have the burden of dealing with the traffic without the benefit of property taxes. We're just getting the bulk of the problems. The Board of Selectmen has expressed its disappointment that the state did not take us into consideration."

Calls to Wilmington State Representative James Miceli and North Reading State Representative Bradley Jones were not returned in time for deadline.

According to the North Reading Transcript, North Reading and Wilmington's shares of the money were calculated on 20 percent of the "net" proceeds of $2.75 million from the $8 million sale price from the first phase of residential development. According to the Transcript, the state held approximately $5.25 million as reimbursement for the costs of "mothballing and maintaining" the facility since its 1995 closure, and $2.7 million in environmental escrow funds. The state did pay an outstanding water bill in the amount of $11,541 to North Reading.

Postmaster retires

Boston: In 1988 DiGregorio was promoted to District Manager of Marketing Communication at the Management Sectional Center in Worcester where he served until 1993. Then in 1993, after a reorganization process, DiGregorio became Director of Marketing Communications for the Massachusetts District where he remained until 2005 when he was named Postmaster in Wilmington.

DiGregorio was given special assignments that included working with industrial engineering and he implemented programs in Washington, D.C. for customer service and sales. In fact, DiGregorio spent several months in Potomac working for their training center.

"It's been wonderful working for the post office," DiGregorio said. "I've met some great people. The post office offers folks opportunities in different areas.

They have great training programs and great mentors. For those who take advantage, it can be a great career opportunity."

DiGregorio added, "I like to challenge myself and look for new and interesting things. At the post office, there was always something happening. I started out sorting mail by hand, but through advances in technology, I got to see the LSM (letter sorting machines) in use. Now, high speed optical scanners read the bar codes and pieces of mail are sorted electronically."

Looking forward to his retirement, DiGregorio anticipates spending time with his family and friends this summer. Retirement will also afford DiGregorio an opportunity to pursue other areas of interest.

One interest DiGregorio truly enjoys is being an active and involved member of the Wilmington community, an interest he shares with his wife, Dianna, and his daughter, Rachel - who just graduated from U Mass with a degree in Marketing. All three are busy right now with preparations for one of the most anticipated events in Wilmington - Fun on the Fourth.

"It's a great opportunity to give back to our community - that's what it's all about," explains DiGregorio who has lived in Wilmington for more than forty years.

Commenting on his satisfying career and his term as Postmaster in Wilmington, DiGregorio said, "It was a great opportunity to serve both the public and the community, and I find it fitting that I started my career here in Wilmington and that I completed my work at the post office here in the community I admire."

Mikey cheats death

during his fall from the ladder. Still, if Jerry hadn't got him breathing, the trip to the hospital would have been fruitless.

Mikey doesn't remember all that much about the accident.

"I remember we were swimming, and then there was a bee following us, and then I fell off the ladder and twisted my neck and got CPR," Mikey said. "I'm very glad Jerry was there."

Cindy will be taking Mikey for follow-up visits to his pediatrician.

The Murphy's moved to Wilmington just two years ago, and they don't plan on going anywhere.

"This is the best place we've ever lived," Cindy said. "My kids had made friends in the neighborhood within an hour of moving in. This is just like the neighborhood I grew up in - there are lots of kids everywhere. We love the town of Wilmington."

Cindy and her family were big fans of Jerry prior to the accident (Jerry is the coach of Mikey's baseball team), but his status has now been raised to hero in the Murphy household.

Jerry, a lifelong Wilmington resident, had always wondered if he would be able to remember and accurately use his training in the face of an emergency.

"When Mikey was on the ground at my house, I wasn't wearing a Superman costume, there was plenty of panic on my end," Jerry said. "Anyone in that situation, with the training I've had, would have done the same thing."

Jerry recommends that anyone with a pool - or anyone with kids for that matter - take advantage of the CPR classes offered by the Wilmington Police Department.

"The fact that I can look out my window and see him walking around - that's the best feeling," Jerry said. "He's like one of my own kids, he's at my house more than I am."

tion about Ensign Eaton, including regular dialogue with the Korean War veterans associations, in the hope of developing new leads and will forward new discoveries to family members through the United States Navy Casualty Office.

The opportunity for Eaton's surviving family to visit the White House arose back in April when the family attended an event in Boston to get an update on the status of POW's (Prisoners of War) and their beloved brother. After the meeting, Eaton's family was presented with an opportunity to have breakfast at the White House with the President and to go to Arlington National Cemetery to celebrate Memorial Day.

As a result, Wilmington resident Joyce (Eaton) Dalton and her sister, Verlie (Eaton) Quinn, ventured to Washington, D.C. to attend Memorial Day ceremonies.

Ensign Eaton's family dined in the State Dining Room where the Queen dined. After breakfast, the families met with the President to have pictures taken with him. Verlie asked President Bush to sign a card with a glossy surface. When he went to sign it, Verlie said, "Wait, I have a special pen to sign it." President Bush replied quickly with a smile that he had one too and, to everyone's surprise, he pulled the very same kind of pen out of his pocket and signed the card.

Joyce substantiates her assessment of the President as being "a very nice guy" by relating that when she told President Bush that she had a photograph of her son with the President's father, former President George Herbert Walker Bush, and asked him if he would have his father sign it. Bush gave her a business card for his Special Assistant and Personal Aide and told her to send the photo to his Aide and he would get it signed and return it to her.

"After we had breakfast and had our pictures taken with the President in the Blue Room," Joyce recalled, "we were escorted to buses that took us to the Amphitheater where the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier is. We had reserved box seats for the ceremony."

The crowd listened intently to the President of the United States as he presented his speech, "Prayer For Peace, Memorial Day, 2007."

"On Memorial Day, Americans pause with solemn gratitude and deep respect for all our fallen service men and women who have given their lives for our country and our freedom," Bush said. "All Americans honor the memory of the lives that have been lost in defense of our freedom. Our Nation mourns them, and their example of strength and perseverance gives us resolve. We are also thankful to those who have stood by our service men and women in times of war and times of peace."

Ensign Eaton's story is mentioned in a book documenting the plights of many of those war heroes Truckbusters from Dogpatch: The Combat Diary of the 18th Fighter-Bomber Wing in the Korean War, 1950-1953 written by Tracy D. Connors. Connors own uncle was killed in the same mission but his remains were recovered and returned to his family. Connors has another book in in the works that will focus to a greater degree on Eaton's story.

Eaton graduated from Wilmington High School in 1947 and was the only Wilmington resident listed as missing in action during the Korean War. Eaton is also the only deceased sibling from a family of nine. Family members include sisters, Joyce Dalton of Wilmington, Verlie (Eaton) Quinn of Centerville, MA and her twin sister, Verna (Eaton) Richard of Wilmington and Eva (Eaton) Brown of Stoneham, as well as brothers, Forrest Eaton of Harwich, MA, Wayne Eaton of Harwich, MA, Bernard Eaton from Maine and Everard Eaton from New Jersey.

There is a monument at corner of Main Street and Glen Road in Wilmington dedicated to Ensign Ronald D. Eaton. Even after fifty-five years, Eaton's family still loves, honors and years for their beloved soldier and seeks closure on a nightmare that haunts not only his family but countless other families of missing servicemen and women - from each and every war.

Scotia. Cilla's brothers were tracing the family history and found themselves heading to Truro, Canada - just an hour away from Nelly. When Anne found out Cilla was going, she hopped on a plane. The friendship began immediately, everyone joking and having the best time together.

They know their friendship is unique and Cilla says, "People just don't get us!"

They've all been through job changes, watching their children grow up and graduate, lots of laughs, lots of tears, two 25th anniversaries, and, most importantly, lots of memories.

The husbands get along just as well. In the past 10 years they have vacationed together as a group seven times: Seattle twice, Canada several times, and here in Wilmington several times.

They call themselves the "NetNuts" and they certainly are that. They laugh at their own Internet language, for example "brain share," "JPMP," and "who'd a thunk it." They chat with each other for advice and listen when someone needs to shed a tear and talk.

One particular memory Nelly and Cilla share is when Brian and Cilla were visiting the Smees. Nelly and her husband John had to go to a wake and in true "NetNut" fashion, John and Nelly came home to find Brian and Cilla were tied up, back to back in the kitchen sitting in the dark, with duct tape over their mouths and a note from the kids saying, "took the car, don't know when we'll be back!" They still laugh about how the kids all should be in therapy because of the NetNuts!

Cilla and Nelly also enjoy talking about the time they went to Seattle for the first time. Anne and her husband Pat, had a small house but Anne said, "come any way we'll circle the wagons around the camp!" When every one showed up, there were camping trailers all in a circle, and they will never forget the beauty of Mt. Rainer! Just this past September they returned to Seattle and saw Mt. St. Helens.

The next "NetNut" trip is scheduled around the wedding of Nelly's daughter Amanda next June. Anne and Pat, and Brian and Cilla, will be there.

In an age where every one worries about Internet predators, these three women found a lasting friendship that they plan to continue on with forever. "Who'd a thunk it?"

Two of the best in New England

Fahey tosses 173 feet ...

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

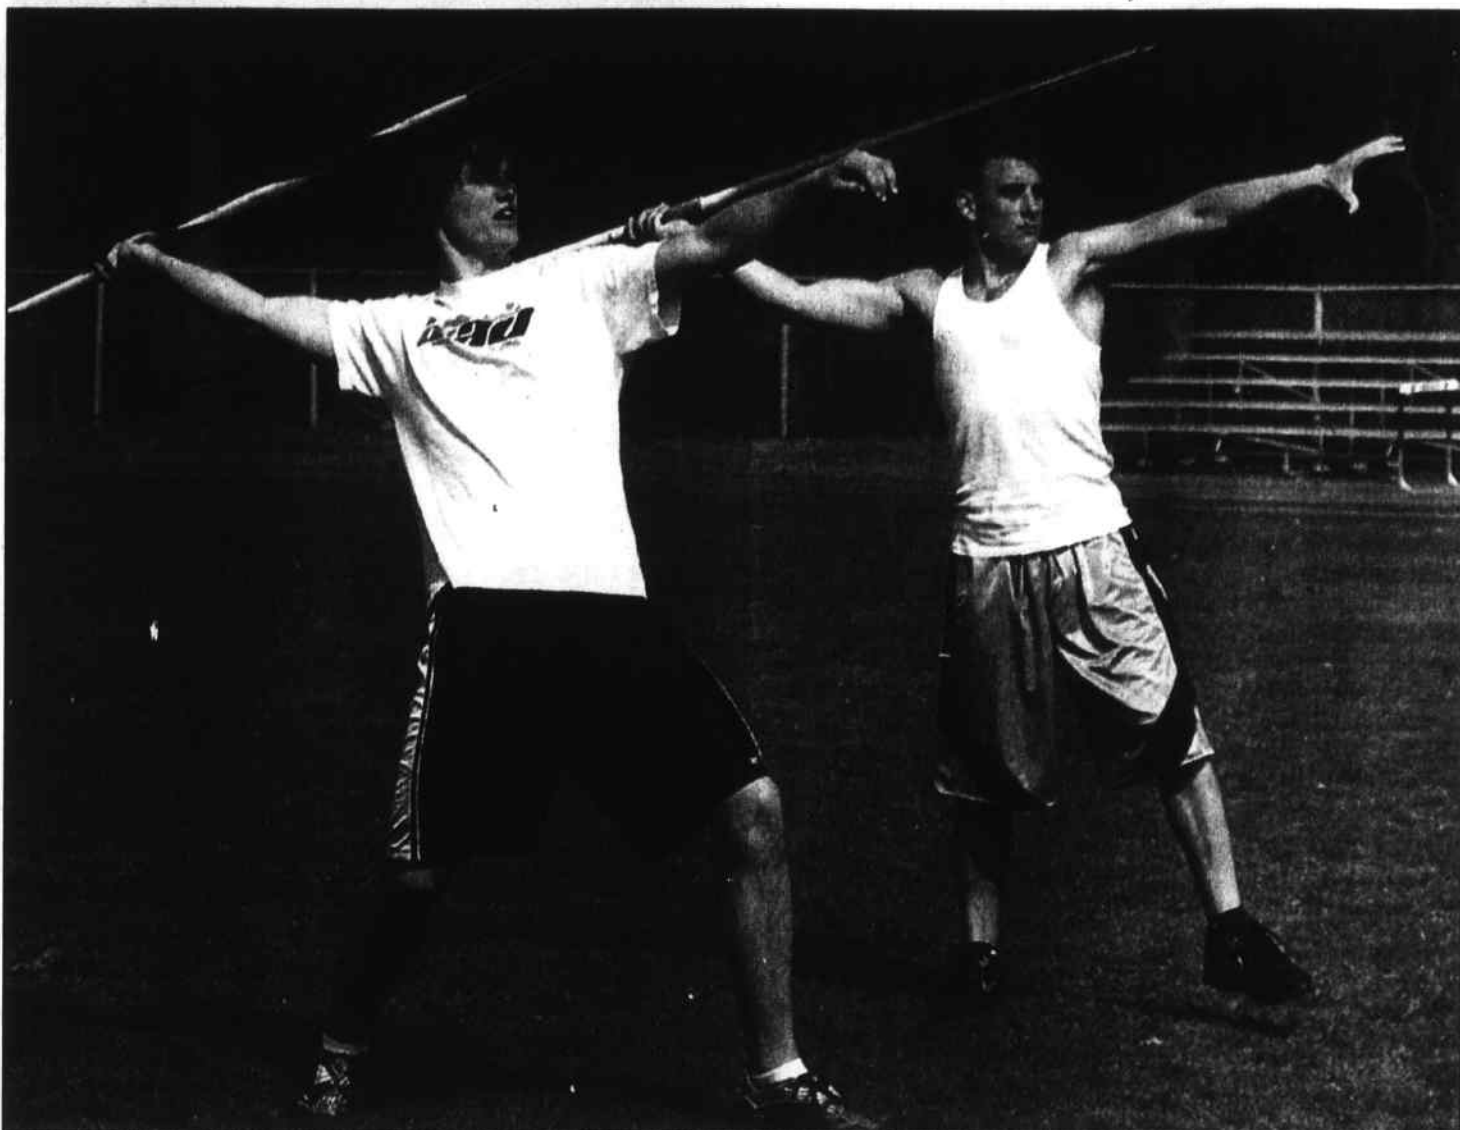

Every athlete would like to end their career while still at the top of their game, and Wilmington High track star Shawn Fahey is currently giving new meaning to what it means to go out on top. The recently graduated Fahey still has a great career ahead of him in the javelin throw at UMass Lowell for the next four years, but he is certainly wrapping up his high school career in style.

Three weeks ago, he snared a second place finish in the State Division 3 meet with a throw of 170-04, two weeks ago, he once again, finished second, this time in the All-State meet with a throw of 173-07, and finally as the coup de grace this past weekend the finished fourth in the All New England Meet at Fitchburg State College on Saturday afternoon with a personal best throw of 174-04.

The throw also put him as the top finisher in the event from Massachusetts, edging teammate Nick Farnsworth who finished sixth overall and second in Massachusetts with a throw of 168-02.

"It was a great experience and I was real happy to have my best throw of the year in one of the most important meets of the season," Fahey said. "I felt going in that if I could throw around 175 I would have a hot at finishing in the top 5, so I was glad to see it work out the way it did."

Making Fahey's performance all the more remarkable were the conditions he and the other competitors were dealing with.

Wilmington High's Nick Farnsworth, left, and Shawn Fahey, right, finished among the top sixth in the javelin during Saturday's All New England Meet held at Fitchburg State College.

... While his pal Nick takes sixth

Sports Correspondent

Nick Farnsworth has made a habit out of doing great things for the Wilmington High track team with one outstanding performance after another in the javelin throw this season. With all of the positives that Farnsworth has been a part of in his junior season, it would seem the only negative for him would be a case of bad timing over the past couple of weeks.

After wowing spectators and opposition alike a few weeks back with a remarkable throw of 191-4, when he captured the Division 3 State Meet, he suffered a back injury just to the All-State Meet a couple of weeks back and even more importantly, he injured his elbow on the day of the All-New England Meet, which was held at Fitchburg State College on Saturday.

As a testament to Farnsworth's tremendous ability he still managed to finish third in the All-State Meet with a throw of 172-11, and amazingly while still suffering from the effects of the back injury and adding the elbow injury on top it, managed a sixth place finish in the All-New England's with a throw of 168-02. This after hardly practice all week due to his back injury.

Despite finishing sixth in all of New England, and second in Massachusetts to teammate Shawn Fahey who was fourth overall, Farnsworth knows things could have been even better.

"I was still happy to place, but I could not get off my throws like I wanted to," Farnsworth said. "I was hurt coming off the previous meet with my back and the elbow just added to it."

Another factor for Farnsworth, as well as those other competitors were the weather conditions on Saturday. After rain earlier in the day, the runway for the javelin throw was in very poor condition, and although Farnsworth would never admit it, the raw feeling in the air could not have helped either injury.

"It had pretty much cleared out for us when we were throwing, but it had been pouring earlier and it was just awful conditions," Farnsworth said.

The best news for Farnsworth of course is that he will be back next year with a chance to improve on this season, and with a full season to improve, Farnsworth would not be surprised to better even the amazing throw of 191-04 that he had.

"I am really looking forward to next year because I really thought I could have done a little better this season," Farnsworth said. "The big throw was not a perfect throw, and I knew even then it could have been better."

With heavy rain earlier in the day, Fahey was not only battling the other competitors, but the elements as well.

"It had stopped raining by the time we started, but the runway was kind of torn up so I was kind of using the side of the runway for a little traction," Fahey said.

It was Fahey's first appearance in the All New England Meet. Despite being the Division 3 champion last season, he slipped to 12th in the All-State Meet and failed to qualify for the New England's. He was not about to let that happen again this season and he was sure to make the most of his opportunity in the meet this season, despite being seeded just 11th in his event heading into the meet.

"I was pretty happy just to make it there after last year so I was able to just relax and not worry about anything and just throw the best I could," Fahey said. "As it turned out, it worked out well."

Decathlon

Things actually worked out very well for Fahey in the day leading up to the meet as well, as he was one of 110 athletes to compete in the MSTCA Northern Area Decathlon at Burlington High on Tuesday and Wednesday, and he finished 8th among all of those athletes, garnering 5,182 points to help lead the Wildcats as a team to a second place finish among the 37 schools that were entered.

"I was actually a little disappointed because I was in second place at the end of the first day and I was just a little behind the kid from Burlington who is supposed to be one of the best decathletes in the state," Fahey said. "And with some of my best events like the javelin and the discus still to come I thought I would do better. I guess I shouldn't really say I was disappointed, but I would have liked to have done better on the second day."

Fahey did have the top overall throw in the javelin, with a distance of 162-01, which earned him 580 points, but that was not his highest scoring event, as he earned 645 points in the 100 meters with a time of 12.03 and 628 points in the shot put with a throw of 40-06.75.

Fahey also may have surprised some people with his great showing in the high jump with a leap of 5-09.75, which earned him 602 points, but he did not really surprise himself.

"I have always been pretty good at the high jump, but we have other kids who do it and do a good job at it, so I don't do it for the team," Fahey said. "Unfortunately not knowing what I could do, I started at a pretty low height and I only had one shot at an even higher amount than I ended up with and I almost cleared that."

One thing Fahey definitely learned in the two day event was an appreciation of the grueling nature of the decathlon, which he will participate in again in a few weeks time in a Junior Olympics Regional Qualifier in New York.

"I was beat by the end of it," Fahey said. "I knew I was in pretty good shape, but it was not good enough. I think part of the reason I did not do as well the second day is that I was so tired. I was joking with my dad that it was like I had played in a football game."

"But now I have a better idea of what I can do and hopefully I will do even better the next time I am in a decathlon."

Track athletes fare well at Decathlon Meet

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The regular season has long since ended for the Wilmington High boys track team, but several members of the team have continued to excel in post season meets, putting a great finish on what was an outstanding season for the entire team.

Most recently the Wildcats had two members of the team place in the top six in the javelin throw at the All New England Meet held last Saturday at Fitchburg State College. Senior Shawn Fahey scored a fourth place finish with a personal best throw of 174-04 while junior Nick Farnsworth followed close behind with a throw of 168-02.

The pair were the top two finishers in Massachusetts.

Fahey, along with five other members of the Wildcats squad also recently participated in the MSTCA Northern Area Decathlon, which was held at Burlington High last Tuesday and Wednesday, and the results were exceptional as the team finished third overall in a field of 36 teams, while three members of the Wildcats finished in the top 30 in a field of 110 athletes.

Fahey was the top individual finisher for the Wildcats, finishing eighth overall with 5,182 points, while Tom Barry finished 16th with 4,854 points. Jimmy DiNuccio finished 30th overall with 4,602 points.

Rounding out the field for the Wildcats were Matt Figueirido with a 50th place finish and 4,282 points, Mike Condell in 52nd with 4,266 points and Nick Jannone in 67th place with 3,782 points.

First annual Wildcat field hockey summer clinic

The Wildcat Field Hockey Clinic will expose young girls to a fun, intense, and well-known sport that they can pursue in high school and college. Field hockey is something that we, as coaches and former players, are very passionate and knowledgeable about.

We would like to give young girls - those that have previously played and those that have never played - the fundamentals, traditions, skills (beginning and advanced), friendships, and self-confidence that the game yields itself to. Throughout this four day clinic, participants will be coached in hand-eye coordination, ball and stick control, a variety of dribbling techniques, shooting, offensive and defensive skills, how to communicate with other players, and how to finesse one's game with flicks, spin moves, passing, and penalty shooting. Participants will also get the chance to scrimmage those in their age group, participate in relay races, and fun games that have become one with field hockey.

Participants will also have a chance to meet coaches and players from WHS and decide whether field hockey might be a sport they would like to pursue! WHS Varsity and JV players will be on-hand demonstrating skills and techniques for the girls, as well as talking to the girls about their high school sport experience.

Cost is $100 per player

Search for new Tewksbury AD has become a joke

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Enough already. Can the town of Tewksbury please name a new athletic director? This is absolutely ridiculous. How long do we all have to wait? How long does Bob Aylward have to wait until he helps out his replacement? How long do the rest of the TMHS coaches have to wait to know who they are going to work for? How long does this farce have to go on?

Back in mid-April, School Committee member Keith Rauseo (not his fault) said that he didn't think the process for a new athletic director would take that long. After all there were four candidates and he thought the part-time stipend position would be filled by the end of May, therefore making it that much easier for the transition.

So now we're in the middle of June. Still no athletic director. The process started out with four candidates - baseball coach Ron Drouin, boys lacrosse coach Brian Hickey, track and soccer coach Steve Levine and field hockey coach Pat Ryser. According to multiple sources, the search is down to two, Hickey and Levine.

Since no one can make a decision, let's pick out of a hat - or maybe roll the dice, play rock-paper-scissors, high card wins, best out of three in Uno, or flip a coin because any of those scenarios are better than the one that's going on now.

A decision has to be made. Both Brian Hickey and Steve Levine are excellent candidates. And so were Ron Drouin and Pat Ryser. Certainly this selection isn't easy and that's understandable. But two months for four applicants? An athletic director's job description is several chapters long. It starts with running the entire sports department, hiring and (should be) firing of coaches and carries onto overseeing hundreds of student-athletes who take the fields and court each day.

The next chapter deals with balancing the budget - being able to schedule games, buses and officials, while overseeing fundraisers, purchasing uniforms and overseeing all of the fields and courts.

One of the longest chapters is dealing with the athletes and of course parents. You need the athletic director to attend games so Little Johnny doesn't pull a knife on a player on the other team, and deal with the parents, who think their third-string catcher is the next Johnny Bench.

In case anyone didn't notice, Tewksbury High School, its gymnasium, its ball fields and courts need a lot of work. The school system itself needs a lot of work with so many middle school kids going to other schools as fast as Terry Francona throws out his bubblegum while arguing with an umpire.

Both Hickey and Levine have been asked to give up their coaching positions, but at the same time remain as a part-time guidance counselor and physical education teacher, respectively. OK, so now the big question is if both of them have been asked to mow the grass of all the ballfields since they have so much time to spare.

C'mon. Spare me.

Tewksbury Superintendent of Schools Christine McGrath has done a fabulous job during her time here. Back in the mid 90s, she rehired Bob Aylward as football coach, and he not only saved the football program, but perhaps the athletic department which was in shambles at the time. She needs to make a diving save here again. Save this fiasco before it gets too late.

McGrath often talks to the student-athletes about leadership. Well those words need to be taken into action here. Someone needs to step forward, take the bull by the horns, provide leadership, organizational skills and have this screening committee make a final decision of who will become the next athletic director.

Do what's best for the children of Tewksbury. It should always come down to that - whether it's in education or athletics. Stringing these guys along, to take a part-time stipend position to oversee hundreds of students is not what's best for the children of Tewksbury. Let's step up to the plate and deliver the game winning home run now. Let's not only name a successor to Bob Aylward, but have it as a full-time position. Anything less is a complete disservice to the children of Tewksbury who will suffer the most.

Let's do the best for the children of Tewksbury. Yes it's that simple. It's not Rocket Science. Let's make the decision today. A fifth grader would have done it by now - hell so would've a Caveman. It's that simple.

Bargain table at Barnes and Nobles

A passion for reading and storage space

Please, don't try this at home anytime soon. Don't try moving volumes of books in many, many boxes by yourself while juggling multiple doctors' appointments. I've been away from the Cookie Jar for two weeks, plenty of time to remind myself that I don't feel like changing addresses again anytime soon - and that I should just read one book at a time instead of two or three. I should also dust off that Boston Public Library card and cease and desist circling the bargain table at Barnes and Noble like a junkyard dog looking for the nearest bone to lick perfectly clean.

But, I don't think I can stop. Is there a recovery meeting for this disease that ails me? Yes, I really believe that knowledge is power, but with all that power I'm going to need a bigger storage area, because the one that I've just rented is full with my one chair and what seems like 50 boxes of books. I know for sure that I'm in trouble, since over the past two weeks, I've filled what leisure time that was available attending book readings and signings from Cambridge to Downtown Crossing.

I began with my other passion - music - that runs a close second to reading and writing about sports and the interesting people who participate in the various games. Crystal Zevon, the ex-wife of the late, great Warren Zevon, a historic musician and hell-raiser, was in Cambridge to read and autograph her oral biography of the 'Excitable Boy.' Titled, 'I'll Sleep When I'm Dead - The Dirty Life and Times of Warren Zevon' with a foreword by noted Miami author Carl Hiaasen, I talked to the ex-Mrs. Zevon and mentioned that having seen Warren at least one-hundred times in various venues and stages of his career, I was interested to hear that he had the very same problem that I was faced with - a house full of books with nowhere to put them.

Warren, having discovered that he was OCD (obsessive-compulsive), decided long before he stopped drinking that he loved to read. Sitting in the back row listening to Crystal Zevon read from her book, I discovered that a musician whom I loved in life was a kindred spirit even in death. I could relate. Crystal signed my book: "To Cookie, send Lawyers, Guns and Money - The (expletive) has hit the fan." Perfect. Another book. More hero worship - and even more knowledge. I devoured the four hundred and fifty pages in two days and wondered just where I would find the room for another hardcover. That would be easy, since the book was signed with my favorite Zevon song title, the coffee table would do just fine, since I keep picking the volume up and looking at the signature several times a day. Finding enough space for books might not be my only problem.

Hoping that my need for some rest between trips to the storage area would still my desire for another book reading or appearance by some author, I wandered over to Borders in Downtown Crossing to listen to some new music when I discovered that noted sportswriter and author Mike Lupica was making an appearance to plug and sign his latest novel for and about young people who play sports. Groups of Boston businessmen in suits took time out from their lunch hours to meet Lupica.

Clutching copies of Lupica novels to be autographed for their sons, I discovered that I was not alone in this need to read and learn. Starting with his novel for younger audiences, titled 'Travel Team,' Lupica has a whole new niche - adolescents that actually read and relate to a lead character who was cut from a team and told by some adult that at the age of 12 his athletic career was over.

Two books later, Lupica, juiced by a mid-morning double-espresso and a pending column in the New York daily News on that noted nitwit Jason Giambi, held the lunch crowd and some guys in Celtics' shirts attention for just under an hour before hustling off to the next radio appearance. I didn't buy a book (a big step for me), but I learned something. Young people are putting down the iPod long enough to read again. A small miracle on this day, when getting some more moving done should have been occupying most of my attention.

I almost forgot about getting some rest. Since I don't sleep without radio headphones (OCD again), I awoke Sunday morning to senior Sports Illustrated writer Rick Reilly appearing on Bob Costas' weekly program. Why this program is relegated to 8 a.m. Sunday mornings is beyond me, given all the Red Sox lineup and trade talk that we are subjected to every week. But, that is a story for another day. Sports nonsense too often beats out sports knowledge and information, but I digress again.

Reilly, who has been voted National Sportswriter of the Year eight times, is the author of the weekly 'Life of Reilly' column that runs on the last page of SI. That column is often the best thing that appears in the magazine, and is notable in that it was the first signed weekly opinion column in the magazine's history. Lucky (or unlucky) for me, Reilly also has a new book to plug - 'Hate Mail from Cheerleaders and Other Adventures from the Life of Reilly.' The book, a compilation of some of Reilly's best work, is available at a nice discount on amazon.com. I don't think Reilly needs another plug for this latest book - just like I don't need another book, because I have no room to put any more books except for under the bed.

Eventually, I will search out the Reilly compilation at the library, since he does what I often admire - he makes sports and the people who play them fun - and funny. Publishers Weekly called Reilly "an indescribable amalgam of Dave Barry, Jim Murray and Lewis Grizzard, with the timing of Jay Leno and Johnny Carson." Reilly was in rare form on Costas' program Sunday morning. I couldn't doze thanks to his take on everything from his scary appearance on Oprah (the subject - 'what's wrong with men?' - ugh) to the influx of sports blogging that gives the real writers out there a bad name.

That's all that I needed on this morning - another subject that really strikes an active chord with me. Reilly noted that anyone can blog all day from their basement, often attacking without checking facts involving anything or anyone that moves.

He mentioned the importance of the Two F's - Facts and Fairness - that are too often left behind by some bloggers. All of this blemishes the best bloggers out there like Boston Herald sports-writer Rob Bradford, who has really made quite a name for himself via blogging accuracy that gives the reader a wealth of information.

Reilly also does something else (besides attack the indiscriminate blogger) that I admire - he finds the little guy with something interesting to say. You know, the guy who sits at the end of the bench of life that too often gets ignored when it comes time to write The Big Story that you assume everyone cares about.

Sunday, Reilly mentioned the legendary writer Jimmy Breslin, who began his career many years ago in The Toy Store (any sports department) before moving on to the 'serious' side of life. When President John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, Breslin found the guy who dug the grave at Arlington National Cemetery. Now, that is a column worth digging through a library archive. Next time I'm in the BPL, I'll give it a gander before I note my new mantra - Don't Buy Books.

Perhaps, after I find and read the Breslin column, check out the new Reilly book, and shift some stuff around in the storage room that I rented, I'll have time to watch Sportscenter at two in the morning. Only then will I think about getting some sleep and searching out that nearest obsessive-compulsive recovery group. I'm sure the room will be filled.

Now, don't forget that summer reading. With this column, I've supplied you with a nice little list. When you're finished reading, do yourself a favor - if you've actually purchased the book, donate it or pass it on to another voracious reader. If you decide to keep it like the many others you have collecting dust, you can always call me. I've got the phone number of a nice storage facility.

Orioles and Yankees enjoy several wins

Major League Baseball
Orioles 8 White Sox 7
The Orioles and White Sox played an old fashioned game of baseball in the mud, with the Orioles prevailing 8-7.

The White Sox got on the board with four runs in the first on hits by Matt Boutoures and Mike Biondo. The Orioles came back to tie it, with two runs in the second on hits by Andrew Camilleri, Tony Silva and Dan Hope, and two runs in the third inning on hits by Brooks Carter and Mike Curtis. The White Sox then scored three more in the fourth inning on hits by Mike Biondo and Joe Bolognese. It would remain 7-4 until the Orioles last at bat when they scored four runs on hits by Drew Foley, Danny Collins and the game winning hit by Andrew Camilleri.

White Sox pitchers included Wil MacKinnon, Mike Biondo, and Pat Barry who struck out four Orioles. Mike Marinella and Cam Collins also had hits for the White Sox. Eric Marciello scored two White Sox runs. Brooks Carter also had a hit for the Orioles. Colin Doherty and Zach Malatesta did the pitching for the Orioles, striking out nine White Sox. Dan Hope also played a strong game at first base for the Orioles, as did Nick Whalen in left field.

Orioles 7, A's 6 (8 innings)
The Orioles came out on top after eight innings over the A's, 7-6. Drew Foley had 3 hits, including the game winning double, which knocked in Nolan Gaffey, who had also doubled with two outs in the bottom of the eighth inning. Hitters for the A's included Dan Penderenza (3 hits), Nick Distefano (2 hits), Jake McLissac (2 hits), Steven Halas, Mitchell Goulet, and Steve Colangelo. Hitters for the Orioles included, Dan Collins (2 hits), Nolan Gaffey (2 hits), Dan Hope, Tony Silva, and Andrew Camilleri. Danny Collins and Andrew Camilleri did the pitching for the Orioles, striking out 12 A's batters.

Nick Distefano and Steven Halas did the pitching for the A's, striking out seven Orioles batters. Jared Walsh played a strong defensive game for the Orioles, as did Marcus Cole for the A's. The Orioles tip their hats to the A's, who played two games over five hours and played very hard.

Yankees vs Twins
In Wilmington Major League the Yankees and Twins hooked up on Friday night June 9th in the game that would decide 1st place overall. Both teams entered the game with just one loss on the season. It was a much anticipated pitching match up between arguably the leagues two best players, Vinny Scifo of the Yankees and Nathan Grimley of the Twins.

The game lived up to it's billing as a low scoring pitching duel in which one swing of the bat could be the difference. That swing came from the Yankees Scifo as he clubbed a two-run homer to break a scoreless tie in the bottom of the fifth which gave the Yankees a 2-0 win, and the Major League regular season championship for the second year in a row.

Scifo only gave up one hit, and infield hit by James Wilkinson in the first inning, but he was erased when catcher Cam Owens threw him out at third on an attempted steal.

Scifo was only in trouble one other time, when the Twins had two runners on and no outs in the top of the fifth. Two strikeouts and a pop out got him out of that jam and set the stage for his dramatic two-run homer in the bottom of the fifth. After that Vinny ended the game in a flurry by whiffing the side in the top of the sixth to end the game. That gave him 14 strikeouts on the night.

Nathan Grimley was just as tough on the hill for the Twins as the Yankees could only muster two base runners other than the home run (a bloop hit by Scifo and a walk). Grimley struck out 12 Yankees in five innings and showed outstanding control as the lefty mixed his fastball and off speed pitches like a surgeon all night long.

League playoffs start on Thursday night June 14. Check out <http://wilmingtonlittleleague.org/> for details and the full schedule.

Youth Hockey awards night held

On June 6th, the WYH Boosters sponsored the annual Hockey Awards Night at the Wilmington High School. All the players deserve credit for a well-played season. The Mite B and Bantam D teams finished first in their Dual State divisions and the PeeWee C team won the Dual State Championship.

In the Valley League the Mite A team finished first in their division, the Bantam A team won the Championship, and the Midgets finished first and won the Championship. The Burlington/Wilmington Girls U10 team finished first in the Middlesex Yankee Conference. Congratulations to the players and coaches!!

The WYH Board of Directors and the WYH Boosters would like to thank the local businesses for their sponsorship and support: Cooke's Skate Supply, Lucci's, Mallett Electric, G & C Concrete, Pizza Mia, Custom Stitch, Shaw's North Reading, Stop & Shop Woburn, Custom Stitch, Frito-Lay, Flaherty's Jewelers, Hair Extreme, triton Car Wash, Royal Dynasty, Piccadilly Pub, 99 Restaurant, Elegant Touch Nail Salon, Steven Wright, Hockey North America, Verizon, Pepsi, Platinum Door Salon, and E.F. Shea Concrete.

The WYH Boosters' Scholarship was granted to Michael Emery. The scholarship is awarded to a graduating senior who has played in the WYH program for a minimum of five years and submits an essay stating why he/she is deserving of the scholarship. The night would not be complete without the presentation of the Chuck Barbaro Award. This year Paul Collins was presented the award by Noreen Barbaro and her sons for his dedication to WYH.

The Boosters would like to thank the many "Team Parents" that helped the Boosters with their fundraising activities and team communication. Thank you to all the coaches who so generously volunteered their time to our players.

Under 13 Lacrosse team edges Andover

The final game of the season for the U13 boys blue lacrosse team was celebrated with a win against Andover in a nailbiter to the very end! Wilmington showed their talents with a strong passing game and exhibited defensive plays by goalie, Jesse Patterson, whose persistence paid off while in net for Wilmington during the first half.

Maxwell Bar, Keenan Beraldi, Zach Blanch, JT Lynch and Cam Collins showed impressive stick handling while Cam Collins earned an assist feeding Brendan Ahearn, who scored first, to put Wilmington ahead 1-0. Zach Shepard brought the ball to the crease, with a powerful throw past the goalie and into the net to score.

Tom Townsend fed Tim Hunt, who had two goals against Andover, and who, along with Zach Blanch, Keenan Beraldi and Dylan Dinatale, were the leading scorers for the U13 team this season. JT Lynch scored for Wilmington, along with an assist as well, and was responsible for having the season's highest in total assists, along with Cam Collins, who also shared in the season's highest number of assists.

In the second half, Zach Blanch earned a goal by running past his opponents, using his speed and agility, as he's done all season, to bring the U13 team ahead by two in the fourth quarter. A collaboration of fantastic ball handling and passing between Avery Woodbury, Brandon Wong, Jacob Pumphret, Troy Homola, Joe Murphy and Joe Bosco and Benjamin Gillis were key in stopping Andover from taking the lead.

The U13 team played a remarkable game throughout all four quarters. Dylan Dinatale demonstrated control while in net for the second half of the game making defensive plays and keeping Wilmington in reach for their final win of the season by a score of 8-7.

The U13 boys ended their season with seven wins and one loss and couldn't have done it without the great coaching staff of Kevin Blanch, Jim Hunt and Ryan Hunt. Congratulations to the U13 boys blue lacrosse for a great season!

Brown vs. Dartmouth

If you missed this match Saturday at the Shawsheen fields you missed one of the best games of the season. Brown led by the offensive skills of Siobhan Reidy were on display as the scoring opportunities were finished off by Cecilia Chase. Not to be left out, the defense showed it's skills with Shannon Horgan, Holly Doyle leading a defensive stand while the tandem of Mia Buscone made some incredible saves in net.

Dartmouth were a tough competitor as they answered back with goals by Carly Silva, Samantha Grasso, Rachael White while Jamie Stone applied constant offensive pressure. The steel like defense by Nicole Gianatassio made a tough job in goal much easier for Shannon Smith who also performed strong in net. Melanie Fraser had a great all around game providing boost for Dartmouth.

It has been another incredible, undefeated season for the GU13A travel soccer team. The Lady Wildcats are heading for post season play after netting two more victories to finish out the season. The team easily finished off the season with a 7-0 win over Melrose the first weekend in June, followed by a solid 4-0 win this past weekend versus Billerica.

pated in the Danvers Invitational Tournament over the Memorial Day weekend, where they finished as semi-finalists.

It has been another impressive year for this team, and the girls have two play-off games to play this week in order to qualify for a return trip to the Massachusetts Tournament of Champions in Amherst. On Monday the team will face Lowell PAC, and the winner will advance to a final game on Thursday. If all goes well, the ladies will represent Wilmington in the U14 division at the States June 22-24th.

Stoneham Boys Club Fine Arts thrive at Boys and Girls Club

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

Please don't call it the Boys Club anymore as it is now for boys and girls and at the Boys and Girls Club of Stoneham don't expect just physical activity and mindless games as social interaction and cultural and Fine arts are a big part of the program at the facility.

"Some kids strictly come for the art room," said Director of Operations Rick Flynn. "Some kids come for the dance classes and some for other activities."

He added, "I feel the kids benefit from trying as many things as possible. In the old days we referred to some kids as 'gym rats,' but I want that type of kid to become more well-rounded and try different things."

As a result, the Club, which is open to children ages 8-17 years-old, from all over the Middlesex East area, offers social recreation, physical education, dance, theater and many other activities. All of this can be had for a mere $25 per-year ($10 per ½ year) fee.

The Fine Arts Program was developed over the last four years by former Instructor Julie Kramer and present Instructor Leslie DiDomenico. Kramer recently left to pursue her own art career and to continue growing the clothing line, Nathan Loves Mary, which she developed.

DiDomenico has been a part of the program for the last four years. She has a Bachelors Degree from Montserrat College in Beverly and recently received her Masters Degree from Lesley University.

"I try to allow the children to explore as many areas in art as possible," DiDomenico said of her after-school and summer day camp programs. "Within the budget we try to touch on every modality in art."

Flynn added, "We want to enable the kids to experience many types of art, because of budget cuts, they might not get in the school system. (Leslie) touches on so many different ones that the kids might find their niche in one of them."

DiDomenico said, "Even beyond learning art, they learn about different cultures and different artists."

In the beginning of the program it was pretty much an open-ended after school affair. DiDomenico explained that some kids would come to the Club (on Dale Court) and come to the art room for a while and then go play in the gym or try other activities.

However, the art program started to become popular and some children wanted to focus more on their work. As a result a night class was started, where the participants could only work on their paintings, drawings or sculptures.

According to DiDomenico, the night classes offer more structure for the learning experience. It also allows the kids to focus more because the door is not always opening and closing with kids coming in and out.

The Club's summer programs will be starting on June 20 and the Club will be open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. The art program will not only be changing hours but DiDomenico is instituting a change in the focus.

"I'm doing something different this summer," she said. "I'm having more themes. Monday might be cultural art and other days would be different themes. The kids will get to explore the different cultures and mediums."

The Instructor is actually looking forward to Fridays, which is the day the kids get to pick the project and themes to be worked on. DiDomenico stated that it is a way for the kids to have a chance to teach her something.

DiDomenico added, "There will still be some of the walk-in model."

Arts programs are not new to Boys and Girls Clubs. The National Program sponsors a contest between the local clubs.

Over the past several years Stoneham has sent an entry but they usually do not get beyond the regional level. This year's entrant, Heather Norden, 15, of Stoneham is still going through the process and is now competing on the national level.

Norden did a piece in white chalk, which has been entered in the charcoal and pastels division. No word has come back to DiDomenico as yet on how well her young student is doing. However, they expect to find out in September.

"We have never had someone go this far before," DiDomenico said.

Flynn also talked about some of the other successful programs at the Club. These included the making of the movie, "The Big Blue Orb" by the kids who participated in Shane Barry's Drama program, this past year.

According to Flynn, the program puts on two plays per-year and also makes a movie as a third production. The Club then works with the Stoneham Theatre to have the film shown in a special presentation on Fathers' Day, which is June 17 this year.

Before Kramer left, she continued a tradition of procuring tuxedos and ball gowns for the participants. They will all be driven to the theater in a limousine and walk down the red carpet.

OCEAN'S 13

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"Oceans 13", Don't quit now!

"OCEAN'S 13"
GRADE: ***

There are far worse things one can do with your time this summer than spend to hours with George Clooney, Brad Pitt, Matt Damon and their merry men in their latest and greatest caper "Ocean's 13".

The gang reunites after shady casino owner Willy Bank (Al Pacino) welches on a deal with Reuben (Elliot Gould) and assumes full control of the casino. Reuben thought he was going to co-own. The shock of the double cross gives Reuben a heart attack and prompts Danny Ocean (Clooney) and his nine other pals to seek retribution.

Revenge won't be that easy as Bank has all the bases covered to prevent a quick heist job by Danny and crew including his ace in the hole, a state of the art computer system complete with artificial intelligence that can sniff out cheats.

As Danny's pal Roman (Eddie Izzard) puts it "you guys are analog players in a digital world."

While the second installment might have had that sense of familiarity and stuck closer to the vest with what worked so well with the original, '13' feels like a true summer sequel with higher stakes and larger problems while retaining all the charm of the previous outings.

The fact that Danny's gang might be outmatched here makes it all the more engaging as you know they're going to have to put in a lot more work in order to accomplish their revenge this time out.

Director Steven Soderbergh nails that spirit of Vegas cool with one visual treat after another with vibrant colors, luxurious casino sets and a relaxed vibe.

Writers Brian Koppelman and David Levien have an unenviable task of balancing such a mammoth cast, filled with actors who have headlined their own movies, and giving them all equal time to shine but they are more than up to the task.

There's so much to enjoy here from Matt Damon's Linus trying to convince his pals that Bank's assistant Abigail (Ellen Barkin) has the hots for him, Don Cheadle's Basher playing a redneck motorcycle stunt driver or brothers Virgil (Casey Affleck) and Turk (Scott Caan) getting caught in a factory revolution that there's literally something for everyone.

The character interplay is great as well, specifically between Danny and Rusty (Brad Pitt) who have worked together so long they complete each other's sentences, the continued sibling rivalry between Turk and Virgil and Linus consistently feeling he has to prove himself to his peers.

Clooney and company have said repeatedly that this will be their last adventure together, but these movies are just too much fun for them to quit now.

"KNOCKED UP"
GRADE: ****

Adults, a movie aimed at your demographic has finally arrived. As long as you are an adult who can appreciate gross-out humor served with an equal helping of romantic comedy.

In "Knocked Up", a kind-hearted loser (Seth Rogan) meets a beautiful young reporter (Katherine Heigl of "Grey's Anatomy") in a bar one night. After an awkward one night stand, she discovers that she is pregnant. Knocked Up is the story about the next nine months.

As you would expect from the team that brought us the brilliant 40-Year-Old Virgin, this is a very funny yet heart-warming film. Almost all of the jokes hit and the actors put on very solid performers. Rogan and Mann stand out here in a very talented cast. The surprising thing here is that almost every actor has a huge scene-stealing moment. This reviewer had a huge smile on his face the entire movie long (and it is long, over two hours, a good amount of minutes for a summer comedy).

This is a very adult comedy aimed at the post 25 age group audience. While the material isn't terribly offensive, it is still inappropriate for younger audiences and probably won't interest them much anyway.

Knocked Up is a very lovable and witty comedy that should be a welcome friend in this sequel-heavy summer.

"PIRATES OF THE CARIBBEAN: AT WORLD'S END"
GRADE: ***

Most sequels are simply more of the same, and none does it better than "Pirates of the Caribbean: At World's End."

The film is nothing more than a continuation of the second film, last summer's "Dead Man's Chest," and that's all right (to amplify the feeling of deja vu, see this one in the same theater you saw Pirates 2, even try to find the same seats). The films had overlapping production schedules, and "World's End" supplies the finale that "Chest" withheld.

For those who don't remember, we last saw Johnny Depp's Captain Jack Sparrow leaping into the maw of a giant squid sent by Davy Jones (Bill Nighy).

In "Chest's" final scene, Jack's friends Will Turner (Orlando Bloom) and Elizabeth Swann (Keira Knightley) resolve to rescue him from Davy Jones' locker with the surprising intervention of Captain Barbossa (Geoffrey Rush). Surprising because Jack killed Barbossa at the end of the first film.

Seven Brides for Seven Brothers at North Shore

PLAY RUNS
THRU JUNE 17

BEVERLY - The award winning North Shore Music Theatre (NSMT) continues the 2007 season with a rambunctious new production of Seven Brides for Seven Brothers. This fresh new take, based on the MGM blockbuster film of the same name, includes a revised script, new orchestration, and some of the most energetic and acrobatic dancing ever to be seen on the NSMT stage.

Set in 1850's Oregon territory, Seven Brides for Seven Brothers tells the story of Adam and his brothers' pursuit for brides. Adam, the oldest of seven brothers, goes to town to get a wife and convinces a young woman named Milly to marry him that same day. They return to his backwoods home, only for Milly to discover that all six of Adam's brothers also live in the log cabin. She sets out to reform the ill-mannered siblings, who are anxious to get wives of their own. Then, Adam develops an inspired solution to his brothers' loneliness...kidnap the women they want!

Seven Brides for Seven Brothers stars Michelle Dawson and Edward Watts as Milly and Adam who are at the center of this rambunctious musical love story. Michelle Dawson has appeared on Broadway in Ragtime, Showboat and Cyrano The Musical and has been a part of the national tours of The Secret Garden, The Music of Andrew Lloyd Webber, and Annie. Edward Watts was Joe in The Most Happy Fella and has appeared in leading roles in many regional theaters, including Goodspeed Opera, Baltimore Centerstage, Music Theatre of Wichita, Marriott Lincolnshire and Stages St. Louis.

Tickets for Seven Brides for Seven Brothers are priced from $70 to $35. Senior and youth discounts and rush tickets are available. Performances are Tues.-Thurs. at 7:30 p.m., Fri. and Sat. at 8 p.m., matinees Wed. at 1:30 p.m., Sat. and Sun. at 2:00 p.m. For tickets www.nsmf.org, (978) 232-7200 or in person at 62 Dunham Rd., Beverly, MA 01915.

Tia Dalma (Naomie Harris), the voodoo priestess introduced in the second film, has a hidden agenda (hidden agendas are significant in this series) that will fail if Jack and Barbossa remain dead. So she resurrected Barbossa and instigates the quest to rescue Jack that takes up the first hour of the nearly three-hour "World's End."

Elizabeth and Barbossa seek an audience with Singapore's pirate lord, Sao Feng (Chow Yun Fat), in his hidden lair. The first major action sequence breaks out and the crew escapes with their prize, Sao Feng's charts to Davy Jones' locker. After several hallucinatory episodes, Jack is rescued.

And so begins the next plotline: the East India Trading Co. led by Lord Cutler Beckett (Tom Hollander), whose plan is to rid the world of pirates. At the end of the second film Cutler Beckett received Davy Jones' heart, which gave him control over Jones and, by extension, Jones' fearsome ghost ship, the Flying Dutchman. Cutler Beckett has ordered Jones to blow every pirate ship out of the water.

To combat this threat, Barbossa calls for a council of the nine pirate lords, which is why Tia Dalma needed Jack and Barbossa alive. Both council members, they died without naming a successor. Pirates never get around to writing their last will and testament.

There's much, much more, but why give it all away. Suffice to say the many subplots from the second film - such as Will's vow to rescue his father (Stellen Skarsgard) from Jones' crew of the damned - are resolved, although some in unexpected ways.

Director Gore Verbinski, continues to deliver the big-budget goods. Despite its super-sized running time (20 minutes longer than "Spider-Man 3") "World's End" moves quickly and is never dull. It never hits the highs of the earlier film, either, although the half-hour climax - a full-on naval battle in the middle of a giant whirlpool - is astounding.

The script is also filled with humor. But the best parts in "World's End" are the unexpected ones, such as Jack's experiences in purgatory. His ship, the Black Pearl, sits in the midst of a white desert and he commands a crew of his duplicates.

"SHREK THE THIRD"
GRADE: ***

"Shrek the Third" offers few surprises but that's okay. The pacing is brisk and the jokes nearly constant, with enough silliness for kids and cleverness for parents, which

In 'the right place' (Winchester)

"You've had a heck of a year, and you deserve to be reappointed," said Chairman of the Board of Selectmen Thomas Howley to Town Counsel Wade Welch, notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Welch was reappointed, 3-1 (later changed to 4-0), to a nineteenth year as the board's lawyer as he was given very high praise by three selectmen and was opposed by one."

"Howley, who mentioned Welch's successful efforts in a number of issues including the Transfer Station ruling by the state DEP, the water management agreement with the MWRA, the recent submission of the Supplemental Draft of the Environmental Impact Report (flood mitigation), Ambrose School settlement, and the Hamilton Farm requests for proposals, 'all these specific projects benefited immeasurably from Wade's involvement.'"

"Howley said he believes the relationship the board has with its town counsel is not typical. 'It's fairly unusual,' Howley said, adding the board has realized 'real value from this arrangement.'"

"He promised to continue improvement in management."

is all you should expect from this type of movie anyway.

The DreamWorks Animation visuals are a few notches above those found in most animation films. Characters' expressions are exceptionally vivid. The deathbed send-off of Fiona's frog-king dad (John Cleese), for instance, might have seemed artificially prolonged were it not for the glorious frog faces the king makes.

His death leaves Shrek first in line to be king, but the ogre doesn't want the job.

COUNSEL, CAPTAIN, COMMUNITY

"Selectman Brian O'Connor said he began by 'not appreciating' Welch's work regarding Winning Farm, but over the past two years that he has served on the board his opinion has changed."

"I think this year (Welch's work) with Tom (Howley) and the board has been exceptional. He's really at the top of his game. Wade is the right guy in the right place...."

At the right time (Stoneham)

"The Selectmen's room in town hall was packed with friends, family and fellow firefighters for the happy occasion of three promotions within the department," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"Richard Harris was sworn in as Acting Fire Chief by Town Clerk Barbara Stats. He succeeds Acting Chief David Harlow, who retired at the end of March."

"Harris, whose father Nelson was Fire Chief in the 1970s and 80s, said this was a proud day for him. 'I look forward to doing the best I can to make a great department even better,' he said."

"Selectman vice chairman Stephen O'Leary said it was a happy occasion for both the town and the Harris family."

"This is another milestone for the Harris family," O'Leary said. "His father held the seat before him and helped build the department" to what it is today.

"Noting that William Warnock was sworn in as Deputy Chief, O'Leary noted the second generation of Harris and the third generation of Warnocks will work together. 'We look forward to their leadership in a growing department with great service....'

"Selectman Mike Harris remembered when his grandfather was chief. He noted his uncle and cousin are also members of the department (he also has three other uncles who are firefighters in other towns) and he was very excited."

"I'm proud of my dad,' he said."

"Similar sentiments were expressed when Town Clerk Stats swore in the department's two new captains, Barry Galvin and Joseph Marotta."

"These are two more young guys who are going to lead the department," said Chief Harris. "They've done a great job in the last year and I know it will continue."

DEFICIT SAVING IN WOBURN

'Very strong people' in Lynnfield

"Superintendent Dr. Richard Palermo announced two new hirings," notes the "Lynnfield Villager."

"We have some very strong people I'd like to announce," said Palermo, who later added, "They'll be great additions."

"The appointments are the first of several which will be made to replace departing and retiring teachers and administrators across the district."

"The first of the incoming teachers announced was Mary Tibbets Wu, who has been brought in for the middle school where she'll be taking over for Sally Hatch teaching math and science. Palermo described Wu as a very strong candidate with lots of practical experience."

"Wu holds both master and bachelor of science degrees in civil engineering from Lehigh University and currently holds an educator's license for mathematics for grades 5-12. Wu should be receiving physics certification prior to the school year."

"A former civil engineer, Wu comes to Lynnfield with two years of teaching experience at Pope John XXIII High School. In this previous teaching position, Wu developed and implemented lessons for students in grades 9 through 12."

"In her first year at the school, Wu taught in five subject areas. This load has diminished some as for the 2006-2007 school year, Wu has instructed in just two areas. Subjects have included physics, physical sciences, chemistry, pre-calculus, trigonometry and algebra...."

"The school department's other hire will fill the void left by retiring high school English teacher and drama coordinator John Qualters."

"Palermo has selected Erica F. Buchholz for this position. Buchholz has been a full-time English teacher for seven years at Horsehead High School in upstate New York."

"She's very excited and we're very excited about having a very strong English teacher from some very reputable school districts in upstate New York," said Palermo.

"Over Buchholz's seven years, she taught all grades within the high school level and instructed such courses as English 9, English 10, American Literature and Composition, Myth, Miracle & Shakespeare, and AP America Voices...."

'Ability to heal' in Stoneham

"Stoneham's newest superintendent of schools has little doubt that he has many gaps of mistrust to bridge when he replaces veteran administrator Dr. Joseph Connelly in the district's corner office," notes the "Stoneham Independent."

"According to current Westborough Asst. Supt. Les Olson, who was selected to lead the town's school system in a controversial 4-1 vote earlier, he is well aware that a number of long-time teachers and community members disapprove of his selection as superintendent of schools."

"School Committee member Maureen Soley, the only dissenting vote in the choice of Olson as the district's next leader, couldn't be reached for comment by presstime."

"When Olson was chosen by the School Committee over veteran Stoneham High School Principal Thomas Ryan, who was considered by some to be the front-runner for the post, teachers walked out of the meeting in protest."

"In addition, a number of local parents, teachers, and concerned residents have since espoused their disapproval of the School Committee's decision in recent Letters to the Editor."

"It's never an easy process. You need to sit down and listen to the people who may have been disappointed and prove you have the background and experience [to get the job done]," Olson said, during a phone interview in his Westborough of

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA

In what year was professional football first seen on nationwide television?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Two Roger Williams University sisters capped off an impressive Rugby season by making the Rhode Island All-Star team this spring. JUNIOR CAPTAIN ASHLEY LITTLETON AND FRESHMAN ALISON LITTLETON, both from WOBURN, MASSACHUSETTS, were selected by coaches to travel to Dartmouth College to play with fifteen other players from various schools in Rhode Island. The Littletons, along with teammates from Brown University, Providence College, and three other players from Roger Williams, placed third in the New England Championships, falling to Eastern Massachusetts in the finals. Ashley registered one try and three kicks with the Rhode Island team.

The Littletons will spend the summer playing with the Middlesex Barbarians. In the fall, they will return to Roger William's University. Both girls are starting forwards for the Hawks. Last season, Ashley ended as the team's leading scorer, averaging two tries and four kicks per game. Alison ended as the team's fifth leading scorer, averaging one try per every two games.

The Littletons will attempt to improve on the Hawk's impressive 7-2 record. They start their season in late August. The girl's reside during the off-season in Woburn, Massachusetts, with their parent's DEBBIE AND STEVE, and their younger brother MATTHEW. Both were graduates of Woburn Memorial High School.

•Friends of Reading Recreation (FORR) will be hosting two fun events on Town Day (June 30th). First, with the support of Reading Co-operative Bank and the Young Women's League, FORR will host its second annual Kids Fun Run at 11:30 am on June 30th. The event will take place at the Reading High School Track (around the football field). Kids ages 4-12 will be split into three age groups and race ¼ mile. Kids under 3 can participate in a special 25 yard race.

Registration is highly encouraged and can be done at <http://www.forr01867.org/index.html>. Each registered child will receive an official numbered running bib. Refreshments will be served following the race. There is no charge for this event.

The second FORR event of the day is for kids and adults of all ages. A game similar to horseshoes, Corn Toss or Cornhole is played by teams of two throwing bean bags onto a platform with a hole in the middle. A bean bag landing in the hole is worth 3 points, landing on the platform is worth 1 point. The first team to 21 wins. Scoring can be swift and the lead may change hands several times in a match before the winner is decided. For more details of the game you can go to www.playcornhole.org.

The FORR Corn Toss tournament will take place between 2:00pm and 4:00pm at the FORR booth at the Birch Meadow Complex. There is no charge for this event. The winning team will take home their very own Cornhole set. Register your team at <http://www.forr01867.org/ind ex.html> its 2007 Women's Lacrosse All-America selections this past week, and Babson College junior ANITA MARTIGNETTI (WINCHESTER, MASS.) received Third Team honors. She is just the second player in the 21-year history of the program to earn All-American status, joining Babson Athletics Hall of Famer Tracy Russell '97, who accomplished the feat in her senior season.

Martignetti was the driving force behind the Beavers' best season ever, as the team set a new school record for wins with a 15-3 mark, won its first-ever NEWMAC title, and earned its first-ever trip to the NCAA Tournament. The junior attack was named NEWMAC Athlete of the Year while also receiving her third straight All-Conference honor after a magnificent campaign in which she posted 49 goals and 21 assists for a team-leading 70 points. She also ranked among the team leaders with 21 caused turnovers, 32 draw controls, and 26 groundballs. She was named to the IWLC All-New England First Team for the second straight year, joining Godfrey and Russell as the only two players in school history to garner regional honors multiple times in their careers. In addition, her 21 assists tied the single-season program record held by Katie Matthews '00 (set her senior year), and her 70 points was second most by a Beaver behind only Russell's 73 points in 1997.

POWER WHEELCHAIR

Wishes on Wheels makes available electric power wheelchairs to non-ambulatory senior citizens (65 and older) and the permanently disabled of any age, if they qualify.

Usually there is no charge or out-of-pocket expense for the power wheelchair, including shipping and delivery to the home by a technician, who makes the final adjustments to fit the individual and shows them how to use and maintain it. No deposit is required and there is no obligation for determining if they qualify.

Electric wheelchairs are provided to those who cannot walk and also cannot operate a manual wheelchair sufficiently or safely enough to care for themselves in their residence. They do have to be able to safely operate a joystick controller on the armrest and understand the basic instructions.

There are additional qualifications including that their doctor approves and recommends their need for a power wheelchair.

Please call 1-800-823-5220 or visit www.threewishes.com for more information.

The Wishes on Wheels program's main purpose and goal is to develop public awareness of the assistance options that exist to allow senior citizens and the permanently disabled to remain independent in their homes without incurring extra expense.

pet ala the style of a Hollywood World Premiere opening.

The Club will also sponsor a free Spring Dance Recital put on by the kids in the Dance Program. The event is scheduled to take place Friday, June 22 at Stoneham Town Hall and is open to the public.

"Crazy Thursdays" will be a big part of the summer program at the Club. Flynn noted that some of the outstanding themes for the weekly events will be Girl versus Boy Day, Wacky Team Challenge, World Record Day and the ever popular end of summer Talent Show.

According to Flynn, "Some of the records set on World Record now go back 20 years without being broken."

The mission of the Boys and Girls Club of Stoneham is to inspire and enable all young people to realize their full potential as productive, responsible and caring citizens. The Club actively seeks to enrich the lives of girls and boys whom other youth agencies have difficulty in reaching.

According to the website: "We are dedicated to ensuring that all children within and around our community have greater access to quality programs and services that will enhance their lives and shape their futures."

The Club provides:

- A safe, positive environment: Club staff, facility, program offerings and age-appropriate settings produce continuity, predictability, and a sense of physical and emotional safety for members. The Club sets clear boundaries and rules that provide structure, define acceptable behaviors and are consistently enforced by staff.

- Supportive relationships with peers and adults: Staff members actively cultivate such relationships to ensure every member feels connected to one or more adults and can forge friendships with peers. Staff members demonstrate warmth, closeness, caring, appreciation, acceptance and guidance in their relationships with members.

- Opportunities and expectations: Club members acquire physical, social, technological, artistic and life skills. Our Club expects members to develop a moral character so they know right from wrong and behave ethically. Club staff helps members establish better study habits and pursue post-secondary education. Staff members consistently communicate and reinforce high expectations of youth.

- Fun: Our Club generates happiness, fun and enjoyment for our members. Members develop a strong sense of belonging through personal connections they establish with staff and their peers. Young people have the sense that the Club is theirs when staff members make the Club feel like home, fostering a family atmosphere.

- Recognition: Clubs recognize and affirm young people's intrinsic worth and accomplishments. As youth make improvements and experience success, staff members encourage and reinforce their efforts using rewards, incentives and awards. The Club prominently showcases young people's achievements.

If you are considering a move to an independent or assisted living community or have a loved one in need of skilled care ... it's time for a legal checkup.

➤ If you or your spouse has had a change in physical or mental condition, you should learn about the many programs and services that are available to you whether you want to remain in your home or are considering a move to an independent or assisted living community.

➤ If your Power of Attorney is not durable, it is not sufficient. If you have a Durable Power of Attorney, but it is only a few pages long, it is probably not sufficient for many common issues that elders face.

➤ If you and your spouse have "sweetheart" Wills (each of you leaves everything to your beloved spouse...), consider drafting new Wills which could protect your assets if one of you requires nursing home care.

Exercise greater control over your future by scheduling a legal checkup today.

"According to School Committee member Marie Christie, she believes that Olson has the ability to heal that divide.

"Explaining her support of the Newton resident, the School Committee veteran argued that given the turnover of personnel in the central office, she believed that the town needed a proven leader who could 'hit the ground running...."

In the spotlight in Reading

"The Reading Memorial High School Drama Club's production of 'Seussical the Musical' has been chosen as one of the finalists in the North Shore Music Theatre Spotlight Awards program," notes the Reading edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The North Shore Music Theatre Spotlight Awards have become a permanent fixture in our region.

"New in 2006-2007, is the expansion of the North Shore Music Theatre Spotlight Awards into New Hampshire and Southern Maine. The goal is to expand throughout all of New England in the future. As the program continues to grow and evolve, NSMT looks forward to developing lasting partnerships with the high school musical theater community.

"The talent and heart that was shown during the 2005-2006 season was truly inspiring. The student performers of today are more focused and dedicated than ever before. The purpose of the North Shore Music Theatre Spotlight Awards is to raise awareness of high school musical theater and celebrate the great achievements of all those participating.

"Participating in the North Shore Music Theatre Spotlight Awards gave me the opportunity to see where music theater can take me. The experience I had performing in front of over 1,000 people was truly amazing. I hope to be back next year!" said Channing Shippen, Spotlight Award winner of Best Featured Performer for her role as Fruma Sarah in Fiddler on the Roof...."

MOVIES

From S-3

Before he expires, the frog king mentions another possibility, a relative named Arthur. Shrek, with Donkey (Eddie Murphy) and Puss In Boots (Antonio Banderas), sets out by sea to find the guy.

Donkey says goodbye to his highly affectionate dragon-donkey offspring, and Puss In Boots to the female feline population of Far Far Away. As the ship the three are sailing on leaves, Fiona shouts from shore that she's pregnant. This news doesn't thrill Shrek, because he's worried that the little ogres he's bringing into the world will face the same prejudice he did.

Before he can come to terms with the idea of parenthood, he must impart the "Shrek" snippets of wisdom of self-acceptance to Arthur (Justin Timberlake), a handsome yet oft-bullied high school student.

While Shrek's away, trouble comes to Far Far Away. Trying to fill the royal vacancy with himself, Prince Charming (Rupert Everett) urges a pub full of storybook villains, including Captain Hook, to storm the castle. Fiona and her mother (Julie Andrews), along with Fiona's baby-shower guests Snow White, Cinderella and Sleeping Beauty, are held captive.

The jokes are very witty (bathroom humor aside), and at roughly 80 minutes in length, the film passes by without too much thought..

Other tips in this guide cover the best ways to make a pruning cut, how to prune for form and how to maintain a tree's health by removing trouble spots. It also offers such basic advice as how to hold a pair of pruning shears and make cuts at the proper angle.
